CRAZED HORSES DISRUPT CAMP

Heat Causes Runaways on Parade Ground of the Second Brigade.

WOMAN BADLY HURT

Maj. Blackstone's Charger Makes a Dash Among Crowd of Spectators.

GREAT THRONG OF VISITORS

SPECIAL TELEGRAM FROM JOHN P. COWAN, Staff Correspondent.

CAMP JONES, ERIE, PA., July 16.—Eighteen thousand persons surrounding the parade ground of Camp Jones witnessed an accident this afternoon which may add a tragedy to the pomp and glitter of the Second brigade's encampment. The charger ridden by Maj. Franklin Blackstone of the Fourteenth regiment suddenly became crazed by the heat during Gen. Wiley's review and dashed madly through a column of troops, overturned a carriage and plunged amid a thousand spectators who were standing on the hillside watching the solodiers on parade. Mrs. Peter Eckhert, 65 years of age, of 433 Sixteenth street, Erie, was caught under the infuriated animal and suffered a fractured jaw and a severe nervous shock. Her condition is critical.

Several horses ran away during the afternoon and Battery B's bugler had a thrilling escape. Among the visitors at camp there were numerous prostrations. Mrs. Jacob Heisley of Erie was the only heat victim seriously affected.

Two thousand visitors from Pittsburgh together with immense crowds from all parts of Western Pennsylvania thronged the streets of the camp. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the review was held and all the spectators lined the long parade ground. The five regimental bands were massed in the center opposite Gen. Wiley's reviewing stand, and the various organizations in the brigade swung around to take position in the imposing column.

Horse Stampeded Crowd.

When Maj. Blackstone's battalion came opposite the bands his horse took fright and whirled around in an effort to unseat its rider. Just then the colors of the Sixteenth regiment were passing and the 150 musicians struck up "The Star-Spangled Banner" with a deafening rattle of drums and a ringing fanfare of trumpets. The crazed horse became unmanageable and bolted into a carriage driven by Emil Streuber, an Erie merchant. Mr. Streuber's little son was thrown out and the point of one of the shafts penetrated the shoulder of the horse. Maj. Blackstone stuck to the reins while a scene of confusion stampeded the crowd. While 10,000 people shouted and cheered the patriotic tune, those who were fleeing from the heels of the charger screamed and called for the soldiers to catch the horse.

The animal galloped down the line of soldiers and leaped among the men of Company B. Private Walter Wagner and Corporal John Q. Davis attempted to catch the reins, and the stock of Wagner's rifle was broken off as the horse reared over him. The crowd did not make its escape in time and in the next plunge horse and rider were hurled among the frantic people. Maj. Blackstone fell under the animal's shoulder, but succeeded in escaping injury. Mrs. Eckhert was knocked directly under the horse and her jaw fractured in three places. She was unconscious when picked up and carried to a hospital tent. She was at once given medical aid. Lieut. H. B. Burns, surgeon of Battery B, and Lieut. George L. Hays and A. N. Elsaman, surgeon of the regiment, staunched the flow of blood and ordered the injured woman to be removed to her home in an ambulance.

Had Many Fair Visitors.

The heat was intense during the review and its effects were more noticeable among the horses than upon the men. Bugler Walter Miller of Battery B noticed his horse acting strangely. He started to ride toward a tree which afforded shelter from the sun, but before he could reach the spot his horse reared and ran in a circle around the field. The bugler stuck fast and finally brought the bucking steed to its knees, while the crowd cheered his pluck.

These were the exciting incidents which gave a touch of unpleasant variety to events which will make today memorable in the annals of Camp Jones. Never before was the Second brigade graced by so many visitors. From noon until the bugle sounded taps tonight the company and headquarters streets of the various commands were crowded. In the officers' tents pretty girls were numerous and there were scores of these little "house parties," while the mess tents all had their share of guests. The men who wear the shoulder straps are not the only soldiers, however, who entertained the fair visitors. Down among the "A" tents where the "non-coms" and privates live there were plenty of girls who were just as pretty and who got just as much enjoyment out of their sojourn in the camp.

After dress parade moonlight concerts by the regimental bands were attended by big crowds and the music was of the highest order. Many of the Pittsburghers who came up on the special excursion missed their train tonight and were obliged to remain until tomorrow. The local trolley line made little provision for handling the crowd and the visitors were left at camp after the review with no means of reaching town. Every carriage and automobile in the town was pressed into service and the livery rates jumped 300 per cent.

Drills Will Begin Today.

Tomorrow there will be less opportunity for the entertainment of visitors and the men will begin arduous drills. Battery B will engage in target practice and in the morning Capt. William T. Rees and Lieut. John S. Purviker will begin the construction of a target at Lake Erie. The range will be 2,000 yards and the gunners will have a chance to show their skill

GEN. BLACKMAR IS DEAD IN IDAHO

Commander-in-Chief of G. A. R. Passes Away While Making Tour of Inspection.

SKETCH OF GENERAL'S CAREER

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

BOISE, IDAHO, July 16.—Gen. W. W. Blackmar, commander-in-chief of the G. A. R. died today of interstitial nephritis.

His wife was with him during his illness. The body will be embalmed and taken to the home of the family in Boston. Gen. Blackmar arrived here July 10 on an inspection tour of Grand Army posts throughout the northwest. He was ill when he arrived and gradually failed. The seriousness of his condition was kept from the public at the request of his wife.

Wilmon Whitlin Blackmar was born in Bucks county, Pa., July 25, 1841. He was the son of the Rev. Joseph and Eliza Blackmar, and with his parents removed to Boston when he was a child. He was graduated from the Bridgewater Normal school and was preparing to enter Phillips academy, Exeter, N. H., when the civil war broke out. In the Fifteenth Pennsylvania cavalry he enlisted as a private and went through all the non-commission grades of the regiment until he was commissioned lieutenant and transferred to the First Virginia veteran cavalry. On the field of Five Forks he carried the colors across a ravine under heavy fire of the enemy, rallied his brigade and won the fight. For gallantry he was made captain and awarded a congressional medal of honor. At the close of the war he was provost marshal of his brigade.

Immediately after the cessation of hostilities he entered the Harvard law school, from which he was graduated. In early life he became prominent as a corporation lawyer, and during his life was identified with large business interests. He was married in 1880 to Helen R. Brewer, daughter of John R. Brewer.

Gen. Blackmar was always active in politics as a Republican, but aside from serving in Boston councils always refused elective office. He served for 10 years as judge advocate general of the state of Massachusetts and was famous as an able and eloquent speaker. Gen. Blackmar was junior vice commander of the Loyal Legion commandery of Massachusetts, and a Freemason. At the last national encampment of the Grand Army Gen. Blackmar was elected commander-in-chief.

JEROME WELCOME TO SEE IT

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

Hendricks of the state insurance department to the published criticisms of his official acts in connection with the testimony taken by him in the investigation of the Equitable Life Assurance society and his preliminary report thereon, is made in an extended statement issued from the insurance department tonight. Incidentally, the superintendent publishes a letter addressed to him by his deputy, Robert H. Hunter, at New York, instructing him to deliver his copy of the Equitable testimony to District Attorney Jerome.

The statement includes an affidavit by William A. Comstock, Supt. Hendricks' confidential stenographer, certifying that he alone did the stenographic work and transcribing of notes in connection with the taking of the testimony and the preparation of Supt. Hendricks' preliminary report, and that he personally knows no change or omission was made in the testimony or the report; that outside of the persons officially employed in the conduct

MANION TAKES HEADER, SAVES DROWNING BOY

Robert Waugh Goes Down Third Time When Life Guard Finds Him on River Bottom.

Lifeguards Patrick Manion and William McCready yesterday saved Robert Waugh aged 14, of Bluff street, from drowning in the Monongahela river at lock No. 1. The boy sank three times and Lifeguard Manion rescued him on the river bottom. He brought the lad to the surface and McCready assisted the officer and his burden to the shore.

Waugh was unconscious and the guards worked with him for 15 minutes before he was resuscitated. The lad dived from a float into water beyond his depth. He was seen struggling and the guards started after him. The second time he went down Manion dived after him but missed. The third time he found him under the water.

Today the lifeguards will be fitted with a life-saving appliance. A rope attached to a belt will be furnished them. The end with the belt attached will be placed on the raft. When a boy is sinking one of the guards will fasten this about his body and when he gets a grasp on the drowning boy the other guard can pull the rescuer and the bather ashore. The rope and belt will be of light material, and will not encumber the guards' movements.

STRIKERS CAUSE MUCH TROUBLE AT CHICAGO

Riots Occur at Various Parts of the City and Police Are Kept Busy.

[BY ASSOCIATED PRESS TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, July 16.—The express drivers formerly employed by the seven railway express companies will remain on strike for the present at least. This was decided on today by the members of the Express Drivers' union, when a referendum vote was taken on the proposition of calling off the strike. The decision to continue the struggle was carried by a majority of 12 votes.

A serious riot was narrowly averted tonight between union and nonunion teamsters. Nearly 100 nonunion teamsters, who have taken the places of the strikers, have been living in the vicinity of union headquarters. Tonight, when the union men were leaving Bricklayers hall, they encountered some nonunion drivers. A general fight was soon in progress. Clubs and bricks were being used indiscriminately and several shots were fired, but the police, who had been summoned when the trouble commenced, arrived in time to prevent bloodshed. It was necessary to make several arrests, however, before the opposing factions could be separated.

Another disturbance was furnished by the delegates to a meeting of the Chicago Federation of Labor. Dissatisfaction over the manner in which the election of officers of the federation was being carried on brought about the trouble. During the disturbance revolvers were drawn and the ballot boxes were destroyed. Michael Donnelly, president of the Amalgamated Butchers' union, was severely beaten by the rioters and was taken unconscious from the hall. Many other persons were cut and bruised, but Donnelly was the only one who received serious injury. It was necessary to call the police to restore order before the voting could be resumed.

PRESIDENT ATTENDS CHURCH.

Mr. and Mrs. Roosevelt and Their House Guests Present at Morning Services in Oyster Bay.

OYSTER BAY, N. Y., July 16.—President Roosevelt, accompanied by Mrs. Roosevelt, their children and house guests attended the morning service at Christ church, but did not leave his home during the remainder of the day. No official visitors were received.

Secretary and Mrs. Loeb left Oyster Bay this afternoon for a month's sojourn in and near the Yellowstone National park. They will make brief stops at Chicago and Minneapolis en route. During the greater part of their sojourn they will be in camp in the mountains. Assistant Secretary B. F. Barnes will be in charge of the work at the executive offices in the absence of Mr. Loeb.

HIS DEATH A SURPRISE.

Few of Gen. Blackmar's Comrades Suspected the Serious Condition of the Commander.

BOSTON, July 16.—Except to two or three officials of the Grand Army the news of the death of Commander-in-Chief Blackmar was received with great surprise in this city. The home of Gen. Blackmar was in this city, and since his elevation to the position of commander-in-chief the headquarters of the organization have been here.

Gen. Blackmar is succeeded by John R. King of Washington, senior vice commander.

Two weeks ago the commander-in-chief broke down and was ordered to his bed in his summer home at Hingham by his physician. At the time, however, his indisposition was regarded as slight. July 6 Gen. Blackmar's condition had somewhat improved, and it was decided to permit him to continue his visit to western departments, which had begun early in the year.

Assistant Adjutant General E. A. B. Stillings, commander of McKinley post No. 115 of this city, of which Gen. Blackmar was a member, will leave Boston tomorrow for the west. He will assist Mrs. Blackmar in arranging for the funeral, which probably will be held in this city.

ACTING COMMANDER IS A PENSION AGENT

BALTIMORE, Md., July 16.—By the death of Gen. Blackmar, Capt. John R. King of this city senior vice-commander-in-chief, becomes, under the laws of the G. A. R., acting commander-in-chief, and will continue such until the next annual encampment. Capt. King is pension agent for Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia, and has an office in Washington.

Commander-in-Chief of the Grand Army of the Republic.

LARKIN AND HIS PENCIL

Writes Defending Those Who Took Him Out of Orphanage.

SILENT A YEAR AGO

Now His "Hump" Inspirations Are Coming from a Different Fountain.

MR. BIGELOW'S OPPORTUNITY

John R. Larkin has again taken up his pencil in behalf of the municipality. This time he is engaged in an effort to "hump" the voters of the South Side into the belief they should support the $2,000,000 loan bill for the removal of the hump.

A year ago Mr. Larkin was an "orphan." He had not been re-elected. Director Bigelow says Mr. Larkin has not been an "Orphan" since the February election. There was a movement on a year ago for the removal of the hump. Conditions surrounding the hump are the same now as they were then. Mr. Larkin was not an advocate of the bond issue. He was elected councilman-at-large on his own "I have the last say about the hump and will be heard from at the proper time." The only thing which has happened since the days he gave out the above statement was his reinstatement in the ranks of the Citizens machine and his re-election.

Sees Things Different.

Mr. Larkin has been seeing things in a different light since February. Since his reanointment inspirations come from the fourth floor of city hall. When he sits among the palms and blossoms from the hothouse, independence marvels and the subterranean germ thrives. It fills him with admiration for the father of bond issues and he hurries down four flights of stairs to take his pencil in hand to defend those who took him from the orphanage.

Six days are not enough for Mr. Larkin to labor in behalf of the machine that he needed and the machine that needed him. On the seventh he is found shoving the pencil in behalf of a proposition in which a year ago he could not find merit. Now he eats, dreams and sleeps hump.

With eagerness he tries to make his ready statement prophesy take the place of the actual facts the people are clamoring for, and which Director Bigelow has not felt disposed to give. Mr. Larkin runs to figures—it is his habit—it will take and the like. This time his figures have to do with real estate values below the "hump" and real estate values beyond the "hump." One scientific statement is: "I believe that any opposition to the cutting of the hump from the people of the South Side comes from the want of information." This is not only true of the South Side, but the whole city. Information is wanted, but it is not given.

Fourth Floor Inspiration.

Taking his cue from the fourth floor of the municipal building, Mr. Larkin talks of the free bridges the people have given the residents of the South Side. Director Bigelow was working on the same lay Friday. Mr. Larkin points out that the voters in the "hump" district did not object to giving the South side free bridges, though they rarely cross them. There is another case of the footing up of the money spent for the purchase of the land for the approach to the Twenty-second street bridge. He allows his pencil to say in speaking of the freeing of the bridges: "With much more propriety the people on this side of the river might have called the purchase of these a mere local matter in which they have only a remote interest, if any at all."

Mr. Larkin says: "The supply of land on the lower levels is growing less and the demand grows as rapidly as the population." He does not mention one of the reasons for the supply growing less. There is nothing said of the great area in the lower wards which is kept closed to the growth of the business section because the city administration allows it to become the dumping ground of vice. There are acres of ground which cannot be put to legitimate business uses because those in control of the municipal government see fit to protect those who want it for illegitimate purposes.

Opportunity for Bigelow.

Director Bigelow will tomorrow appear before the chamber of commerce. He is supposed to tell this organization all about the "hump" removal. The public is awaiting the news. The voters are yearning for information. After the meeting of tomorrow, they expect to be fully informed as to the cost of the "hump" cut. He will, no doubt, give a detailed statement of the expense and show clearly that $2,000,000 will be sufficient to pay the bills. On the question of waivers, the director will no doubt be equally explicit. He will have waivers from all the interested property owners and will be able show just what benefits can be assessed and damages collected.

There is another subject on which the voters want some light. They waited it last year and did not get it. There are many public service corporations interested in the "hump" district. There should be agreements from each company relative to how the cost of changing street railway tracks, telegraph and telephone conduits, gas mains and the like is to be met. The taxpayers want to know whether they or the corporations are to bear this expense. These are all matters which cannot well be covered by Mr. Larkin in his statements, which, from time to time, will appear. The facts are known, or should be known, by Mr. Bigelow. The people expect him to take them into his confidence. Information along this line will cut much more ice in the game of vote getting than figures on the cost of the freeing of the South Side bridges or the relative cost of real estate values below the "hump" to the "hump" or beyond the "hump."

Bloomfield Opposed.

Councilman W. A. Mattis of the Seventh ward is just as much opposed to the hump bond issue, in the present uncertainty of public knowledge as to the eventual cost, as he was when the measure was up in council. He says that the Sixteenth ward, which includes the Bloomfield district, is solidly against the bond issue.

"I understand that some of the men who own property on the hump and out Fifth avenue for several blocks are going to contribute to a hump campaign fund," said Mr. Martin. "I imagine, however, that if any bond advocate thinks money will carry the election they have no idea of the amount that will be needed to try to corrupt public opinion. I haven't talked to a single man in my ward, irrespective of politics, who is for the hump bonds. I understand that the intention is to hire the so-called political workers, no matter what party they may belong to, to work for the bond issue. That's a great idea, to have all the political workers, who are opposed to one another on a regular election, get together on one side of a question on hump election day; but I don't think it will work. The people will be onto the job as soon as it is got into working order. Of course, the city administration intends to make it a party question and use the payroll, but the payroll does not always win elections."

FIGHT WITH POLICEMEN AT DOOR OF SYNAGOGUE

Great Stampede to Gain Admittance Into New Edifice at St. Louis.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

ST. LOUIS, July 16.—A crowd of over 5,000 persons fought with the police today in a wild scramble to gain admittance to the dedication services of the new synagogue of the Congregation Sharis Sphard. A number were clubbed, hats were crushed, women's dresses were torn and several women fainted.

After the parade from the old synagogue to the new the edifice was quickly filled and the doors were closed upon a crowd that filled the street for a block. The outsiders tried to force the doors open and a cordon of police was summoned. For an hour the police endeavored to keep the crowd back, but a number of persons grew belligerent and police clubs were brought into play. In the confusion B. Frank, one of the directors of the congregation, who was stationed at a door, was dragged into the street and roughly handled. Finally the police got the upper hand and the street was partially cleared and order restored.

In his dedication prayer and blessing Kantor B. Lieberman referred to the late Secretary of State Hay and eulogized his services in behalf of the Jewish race.

ARE FINDING MEMOIRS OF JOHN PAUL JONES

Frenchmen Are Making Interesting Discoveries About the Wit of the Great Sea Fighter.

(Copyright, 1910, by New York Herald Co.)
[Special Cable to The Gazette.]

PARIS, July 16.—At the moment when the body of Admiral John Paul Jones is crossing the ocean on its way to America an interesting discovery has just been made at Paris in connection with Jones, namely, that of his diary in a quarter volume bound in red morocco, with the arms of Louis XVI. engraved on it, presented to him by that monarch.

Another incident in the life of Jones has been discovered in the "Memoirs of Bauchemont," published in May, 1780. The writer says: "A few days ago the Marshal De Biron, desiring to entertain distinguished foreigners gave a dinner to Admiral Paul Jones. The marshal asked many questions, and two answers given by Jones show his ready wit. The marshal, speaking of Capt. Pierson, said he had been created a knight. Jones replied: 'I hope I shall have him created a lord some day.'

"Some time later the marshal asked whether Jones had witnessed the manœuvers of the Regiment Des Gardes, at a review. 'I should have preferred to see the maneuver at St. James park,' he replied."

LIEUT. PEARY IS OFF FOR POLE

Good Ship Roosevelt Starts on Arctic Journey, Greeted by Passing Vessels.

VOYAGE BEGINS AUSPICIOUSLY

The Pittsburgh Gazette Bureau
Herald Building, Herald Square,
NEW YORK, July 16.

With the sun shining brightly on the big American flag, whipping in a brisk southwest breeze at her mizzen truck, and with the screaming whistles of passing steam craft and the sharp reports of saluting cannon on shore bidding the doughty vessel godspeed, the Roosevelt steamed out through the Narrows late this afternoon, her voyage toward the north pole begun. Members of the Peary Arctic club, with Robert E. Peary, watched her departure from the decks of the navy yard tug Pentucket, and, gathering around the intrepid explorer, wished him, too, godspeed and success. He returned to shore to take his departure for Sydney, Cape Breton, on the midnight train from the Grand Central station, deeming the trip on the Roosevelt to that point unnecessary.

There was not a hitch in the starting of the Roosevelt from her anchorage off Twenty-ninth street in the North river, and no ship ever sailed under fairer skies. Long before the starting time, fixed as 3 o'clock, those invited to go with Commander Peary and the Roosevelt to bid him farewell in quarantine, had gone on board in all sorts of harbor conveyances, and in one instance there was a narrow escape from a serious accident in the choppy sea alongside the vessel. Prof. Monroe Smith of Columbia college, in attempting to land from a launch at the gangway, slipped overboard, but he was quickly grasped by one of the crew of the Roosevelt and dragged aboard.

On the decks of the Roosevelt already had assembled Herbert L. Bridgman and L. L. Delafield, secretary and treasurer, respectively, of the Peary Arctic club; Prof. Holland F. Stone, Gen. J. Russell Lowell, Charles Milliken, Frederick P. Delafield, P. W. Geer, Philip K. Wolcott, W. Wallace Downey and the newly-appointed surgeon of the expedition, Dr. Louis J. Wolf.

Besides these there were Ross E. Marvin, a cornell graduate, who went as a geologist and as official surveyor, and A. Armstrong, who has kryolite interests at Ivigtut, Greenland.

Mrs. Peary and her mother, Mrs. Magdalena Diebitsch, and her sister, Miss Diebitsch, and Miss Babb, went with the party down the bay, as did also little Miss Marie Anighnito Peary and Robert E. Peary, Jr. Mrs. Peary was the only person of this number who did not sail away on the Roosevelt on the trip to Sydney. Late tonight she had decided she would accompany her husband only as far as Boston.

It was seven minutes past the hour appointed that, with the Pentucket alongside as a convoy, the Roosevelt weighed anchor and swung around against a strong ebb tide and headed down stream. There was a scattering flotilla of small launches and rowboats in the immediate vicinity, but the river was too choppy for small boats to navigate in comfort to their occupants. Capt. Frank A. Houghton, who is in command of the Roosevelt on her trip to Sydney, took his place in front of the big hand-wheel amidships of the vessel, the marine telegraph jingled in the engine room, there was a shiver of the staunch pull as the engines turned over, the propeller deep astern, and the voyage was begun.

There had been a silence on the river among the passing vessels, only the sharp blasts of steam vessels warning others of their course, until the white churning behind the Roosevelt told of the voyage just started. Then from every steamboat, tug and ferryboat within hailing distance broke out three long and telling blasts. The ovation had begun and for full two hours, until the Roosevelt was hull down in the main ship channel, all the way down the harbor there was scarcely a moment that the deep-toned whistle of the Peary ship was not sending back to saluting craft appreciation of the honors.

MRS. SARAH J. PARK DIES AT RESIDENCE OF SON

Deceased Belongs to One of Allegheny's Oldest and Most Respected Families.

Mrs. Sarah J. Park, widow of James Park, Jr., died at the home of her son, David E. Park, 320 East North avenue, Allegheny, at 5 o'clock last evening. Her husband was one of Pittsburgh's first steel manufacturers. He died a number of years ago, and since his death Mrs. Park has made her home with her son David.

Mrs. Park was born in 1814 and when quite young moved with her parents to Allegheny, being one of the oldest residents of that section. She was the mother of William G., David E., R. G. and James Howard Park, four of Pittsburgh's well-known capitalists. Besides the above-mentioned, Mrs. Park is survived by Miss Eleanor G. and Dr. C. C. Park and Mrs. Samuel R. Kelly.

There were few better known women in charitable work than Mrs. Park. She was a liberal contributor to all worthy charities, especially those affiliated with the various churches. The deceased was a charter member of the First Presbyterian church, Allegheny, and the Rev. Dr. D. S. Kennedy, pastor, will preside at the funeral services, complete arrangements for which have not yet been made.

Mrs. Park's death was due to the ailments of advanced age. She passed away surrounded by her children and immediate relatives.

BULGARIAN GOVERNMENT APPEALS TO THE POWERS

SOFIA, BULGARIA, July 16.—The Bulgarian government has sent a circular note to the representatives of the powers in which the powers are asked to intervene for the protection of the Bulgarian population in the villayet of Adrianpole, European Turkey, against systematic Turkish persecution which forces the Bulgarians to abandon their homes to seek refuge in the forests and to become active rebels. The note suggests that the villayet be subjected to European control.

HENDRICKS MAKES ANSWER TO CHARGES ABOUT REPORT of the investigation, no person heard, read or saw the report or the testimony or report, excepting Gov. Higgins and his counsel, Cuthbert W. Pound. The statement is as follows:

Report Was Not Altered.

"The statement made in certain newspapers that my report and the testimony taken was edited and altered in the interests or at the suggestion of certain individuals, is unqualifiedly false. No person except those employed by me in the conduct of the investigation read or had access to the report prior to the time it was delivered to the printer, except Gov. Higgins and his counsel, Cuthbert W. Pound. No suggestion was made by either of them as to any modification of the report, and no change was made in the report as prepared by me. The report as printed is in the exact form in which it was finally drafted by the and my counsel.

"At the interview with the governor and his counsel I was asked by the governor whether I had been successful in securing the facts relative to all matters under investigation. I stated to him I had not; that the investigation was necessarily still incomplete; that among other matters which had not been fully covered was one which I deemed of immediate importance, but concerning which I had been unable to procure the facts, by reason of not having learned of it until the preliminary investigation was about completed.

Gets After Loan Matter.

"I then stated to him that I had been informed the Equitable society was carrying a loan of $65,000 in the Mercantile Trust Company of which no record appeared on its books as a liability. The governor stated to me that he believed a further effort should be made to thoroughly investigate that subject. In accordance with that suggestion, I then directed my counsel to make a further investigation and examination relative to that item, and by reason of such action my report was delayed until the conclusion of his effort.

"Our efforts in that particular were unsuccessful. At that time we were unable to secure the facts relating to the matter and consequently my report remained unchanged.

"With reference to the criticism that my report does not fully cover all of the facts brought out in the testimony, I never intended it should specifically refer to everything that was developed by the testimony. On the contrary, I stated at the outset it did not; that the report was preliminary in character and covered only such matters as I deemed of immediate importance to the policyholders.

His Time Was Limited.

"I undertook to comply with the promise that I made to the insurance commissioners of other states early in May to present a report as early as the 15th of June, and it was impossible in the limited time I had to refer in detail to all matters developed during the investigation. If I had undertaken in the report to cover all matters referred to in the testimony it would have delayed issuing the report at least 60 days, and the report would comprise a volume of at least 500 or 600 pages.

"The further charge made that some of the testimony taken was suppressed or edited in the interests of certain individuals is likewise unqualifiedly false. Every word of the testimony given and taken was transcribed by the stenographer in the transcripts of the testimony, absolutely without change. No person except those employed by me in conducting the investigation saw the transcript of testimony, asked to see it, or made any suggestions with reference to it, directly or indirectly. Only three copies of the testimony were transcribed and they were delivered to me personally by the stenographer who transcribed them, and each copy was separately wrapped up, marked and placed in the private compartment of the department vault at Albany."

Jerome Privileged to See It.

Mr. Hendricks goes on to say that on July 6 he sent a copy of his report to Attorney General Julius M. Mayer at Albany and one to Robert H. Hunter, his deputy in New York city, transcripts of his letters to these officials appearing in his statement. The other copy, he declares, since completion has remained at all times in the department vault.

In his letter to Mr. Hunter, Supt. Hendricks says:

"Should the district attorney desire access to this evidence, you are at liberty to deliver it to him or allow him to examine it."

The statement continues:

"The charge that a copy of the testimony was procured by any other person from this department is absolutely false and without foundation. At the time of the publication in the newspapers of a part of the testimony, the copy in the New York office was intact and the seal upon the same had not been broken. The other copy had not been removed from the vault in the department at Albany.

No Desire to Conceal It.

"I have at no time had any desire to keep the evidence from the public. It seemed to me that in view of the fact that the attorney general and the district attorney of New York county might determine to use the evidence as the basis of prosecutions it was due to those officials, and public policy required that they should be first apprised of its contents. When that was done, unless in their judgment the demands of justice required its publication be delayed, there was no reason why it should not be made public. It was and is my intention to have the testimony printed and furnished to all those to whom it may be of interest."

Superintendent Hendricks says he regrets that any controversy has arisen between the district attorney of New York county and his deputy in charge of the New York office relative to the delivery of the copy of his report, and he has written to Mr. Hunter a letter, dated July 15, in which he says:

"Please deliver to the district attorney of New York county the copy of the evidence taken in the investigation into the management of the Equitable Life Assurance Society of the United States, forwarded to you on the sixth day of July, taking his receipt therefor."

As to Mr. Harriman.

With reference to the inquiry as to why Mr. Harriman was not examined, Mr. Hendricks in his statement says:

"He was not a member of either the executive committee or the finance committee, by which committees the business of the society was transacted. There was nothing in the records of the society or in the transactions disclosed by any of the schedules furnished, in which Mr. Harriman's name appears as either selling to or purchasing securities from the society except as mentioned in my report. Although the society has been a large purchaser of so-called Harriman securities, a careful examination of the schedules shows it has not sustained any loss by reason of such holdings."

Appended is the affidavit of Mr. Comstock, the stenographer, relating to the taking of the testimony and the precautions employed in safeguarding the report.

HENDRICKS UNDER STRAIN.

His Part in the Equitable Affair Is Seriously Telling on Superintendent's Health.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., July 15.—(Special.)—There is no doubt the strain under which Francis Hendricks, state superintendent of insurance, has been during the last five months, or since the inception of the Equitable imbroglio, is having telling effect on his physical strength. Mr. Hendricks came here last night from Albany and has remained in bed all day. Those who have called to see him have been turned away. In one instance, where a note was sent to Mr. Hendricks' bedroom, he refused to read it or have it read to him saying: "I do not want to be disturbed."

Not only has Mr. Hendricks the Equitable matter before him in an unsettled condition, but he also has under way the investigation of the Mutual Insurance Company, where a half dozen of his department men are at work on the books.

CIVILIAN SHOOTS DOWN A REGULAR ARMY MAN

Pounded Into Insensibility by Soldier's Comrades, He Regains His Senses and Makes His Escape.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

BALTIMORE, July 16.—Private Patrick Cummings of Company E, United States engineer corps, was murdered today by Hayes Dongidson of this city at a dancing place on Courtier creek, near this city. The murderer escaped, notwithstanding he had been beaten into insensibility and left on the wharf for dead by Cummings' companions.

Cummings and a number of other soldiers were returning on a launch that plies on the creek from this city to the rifle range at Glen Burnie, where their company is stationed. Donaldson, who was one of several civilian passengers, is said to have created a disturbance by criticising the army. When he reached the wharf of the farm where he is employed, he told the engineer of the launch to wait.

Procuring a double-barreled shotgun Donaldson returned, jumped into the launch and fired both barrels, apparently at random. Cummings was the only one hit, and his companions did not know he was killed until they had thrown Donaldson to the wharf, beaten him into unconsciousness and returned to the launch. Donaldson's senses returned, he fled and has not yet been captured.

HEAT IS RESPONSIBLE FOR TWO MORE DEATHS

Although 87 was the highest point attained by the mercury yesterday, two deaths occurred from heat. One, however, was prostrated Friday and the other on Saturday. Joseph Miller, aged 49, died at the South Side hospital, where he had been taken Friday after being prostrated on the street. His home is not known. Frank Soukup, aged 41, of 25 Prospect street, Troy Hill, Allegheny, died at the Allegheny General hospital. He was employed at the Westinghouse Electric works, West Robinson street, Allegheny, and was overcome on Saturday while at work.

FOUND DEAD ON LOG WITH PIPE IN MOUTH

ALTOONA, PA., July 16.—(Special.)—Sitting on a log, with his back against a tree and with a pipe between his teeth, David F. Neel, an octogenarian and a veteran of the civil war, was found dead today on the mountainside near Frankstown. He had been missing for two days. It is supposed he was attacked with heart failure.

Flee from Drowned Comrade.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 16.—(Special.)—Three Roumanians were boating on a small pond in Avon park near Girard tonight when one of them began to rock the boat. All were thrown into the water. Two of them succeeded in reaching shore, but the third was drowned before assistance could reach him. The companions of the dead man fled, and it has been impossible to identify him.

in the most difficult kind of shooting. Distances on the water are deceiving and it will be a matter of rare judgment to get range accurately. Lieut.-Col. J. Harry Corbett of the Fourteenth will hold summary court tomorrow to try four members of the battery who are charged with breaches of discipline.

Capt. Grebe and his officers and men in Company D, Fifth regiment, of Blairsville, today appeared before their guests in immaculate uniforms of white duck. Under the hot sun the soldiers from the Kiski valley were the most comfortable in the brigade, and the boys broke many hearts among Erie girls.

Mrs. A. J. Henderson, who is one of the charming hostesses of the Eighteenth, is arranging for a dance to be given on Thursday evening. Mrs. Henderson never misses a Pennsylvania encampment and in speaking of her forthcoming function today she quite unconsciously fell into the use of military terms. The dance on Thursday following the governor's review will bring together the most prominent young officers of the guard and many of the military belles of Western Pennsylvania.

Gen. Hulings, who is an authority on these matters, by the way, declares that the expression "military belles" is good. He likes the southern idea of fair sponsors for military organizations. The spirit of chivalry is not past, in his estimation, and the influence of pretty women increases the soldiers' valor and pride of arms.

Capt. Hugo Leidsnroth of Company H, Fourteenth regiment, is organizing a baseball team in his command and with Col. Thompson's permission a game may be arranged with the Erie team. Gilbert Miller, a pitcher on the Butler team; Corporal Gregg Husle of St. John's military academy and Corporal "Joe" Thompson are the star players of Company H.

GEN. WOOD'S COUSIN IS ACCIDENTALLY SHOT

WESTON, MASS., July 16.—By the discharge of a shotgun which he had loaded to shoot stray cats, Thomas L. Hagar, a cousin of Major-General Leonard Wood, was instantly killed last night. Hagar's family had been away and when they returned home about midnight Hagar's body was found lying outside of the door. The top of his head had been blown off.

ALEXANDER IS SLOWLY REGAINING HIS HEALTH

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, July 16.—Guarded so thoroughly that not a sound from the outside world may reach him, oblivious to the business world and unheeding the changing conditions in the Equitable Life Assurance society, James W. Alexander, recently its president, gained slowly in strength today. So slowly it was, though, that it needed the skilled eye of a physician and nurses to detect the improvement. To the layman it looked as if Mr. Alexander were ill indeed. Only the assurance of Dr. Arthur Ifelt that his case was "more hopeful" could be obtained.

Mr. Alexander, in his picturesque retreat for wealthy persons in Long Island, is as secluded as if he were occupying the house alone. An entire portion of it has been given over to him, and the three or four other patients there never see him, nor do they know of the identity of the most recent arrival.

The brightness and warmth of today induced his attendants to take their patient out on the lawn in the afternoon. The cool breezes soon fanned him into a refreshing sleep of several hours, and it was when he awakened the favorable symptoms were noticeable.

Runs From House With Dress in Flames.

Casmoreth Sabolosky, a Polish girl, aged 21, was badly burned yesterday afternoon while visiting at the house of O. Cwinski, rear of 3021 Brereton avenue. She had just entered the house and was standing in front of the kitchen stove when her dress caught fire. She ran from the house with her clothing in a blaze until she dropped exhausted on Brereton avenue, near the West Penn hospital. An alarm had been sent in and policemen stationed it in No. 3 patrol wagon found the girl on the road and hurried her to the hospital.

Fire Does $20,000 Worth of Damage.

The loss by the fire yesterday morning at the Keystone paper box factory, 13 Miller street, is estimated at $20,000, the loss on stock and machinery being the larger part of this sum. The building is a four-story brick, comparatively new. The floors and interior woodwork are badly burned, but the walls are not seriously injured. The machinery, including two gas engines, suffered from both fire and water. The plant was insured for $8,000. The factory is owned by Rouse & Scarpoff, and the senior member of the firm is now visiting in Los Angeles, Cal.

TELLS HOW HE MURDERED WIFE

Massachusetts Mystery Cleared Up by Arrest of Husband in Colorado.

STORY OF HORRIBLE CRIME

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

LA JUNTA, COL., July 16.—John Schidlofska, a Russian wanted at Belmont, Mass., for the murder of his wife last Wednesday night, was arrested this afternoon by Sheriff Barr while passing through the city on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railroad. Schidlofska confessed and gave the full details of the tragedy which has been puzzling the Massachusetts police. He said that he and his wife were drinking and quarreling Wednesday afternoon. They continued their quarrel at a park that night when her taunts enraged him to such an extent that he cut her throat with a knife and threw the body into a gulley. Then he started for the west, making no attempt to conceal his identity.

The prisoner expressed a willingness to return without extradition papers, and he will be held by Sheriff Barr pending the arrival of officers from Massachusetts. A telegram from Chicago apprised Sheriff Barr of the fact that the Russian would be on Santa Fe train No. 1 from the east. The train stopped but a few minutes at the station, but this was sufficient for the sheriff to pick out his man.

Schidlofska told a clear story of the tragedy. He said he came to America from Poland five years ago and worked on a farm near Lynn. On February 14, 1909, he married the woman whose murder he now confesses. When he married her, he stated, the woman represented that she had $600 and was but 21 years old. He found afterward that she had but $79 in money and was more than 40 years old. The deception she worked upon him was the constant cause of quarrels, he said, and these quarrels had their culmination Wednesday night.

That afternoon they decided to go to California and the wife furnished the money for two tickets. Then they drank heavily during the afternoon and went to a park at night. The quarrel over the statements the woman had made before their marriage was begun anew. He threw a rock and struck her in the head, and while she was lying unconscious from the blow he slashed her throat with a penknife and dragged the body through an unfrequented part of the park, throwing it in a gulley and covering it with rubbish. Then Schidlofska returned home, where he spent the night, leaving for the west Thursday noon. Before leaving he returned the ticket which he had purchased for his wife, receiving for it $60.

FOOL ROCKS THE BOAT.

Now He Is at the Bottom of the Pond With Two Young Women Who Are Also Drowned.

DOVER, N. H., July 16.—Two men and a woman, mill operatives, lost their lives in a boating accident on Willand's pond here tonight. Two other occupants of the boat were rescued. Eva Talbottle, 18 years; Phillan Langlois, 21 years, and Peter E. Dandoorai, aged 25 years, were drowned.

The boat was weighted down by the five occupants. Miss Dandaine, one of the occupants, became alarmed, and to allay her fears, it is said, Langlois stood up in the boat and began to rock the little craft, which capsized. Henry Lamoreite and Miss Dandaine clung to the overturned boat. The other three sank.

MOKE HAS BUSY DAY.

Central Station Magistrate Imposes Salty Fines on Saturday Night Offenders.

Magistrate Moke had a rather busy time dealing out sentences to Saturday offenders at Central police station yesterday morning. He had a total of 72 persons before him, 40 of whom were discharged. Among the others some salty fines were imposed.

Lizzie McCauley got hopelessly drunk and was fined $50 or 90 days. Bridget Welsh was also fined $50 or 90 days for begging in stores and on the streets. F. Maguire was taxed $25 or 30 days for being a suspicious person. He was trying to sell a ring which the arresting officer said he had stolen. James Boswell, said by the police to be a professional thief, was fined $25 or 30 days. John Sullivan and William Dickson took part in a street fight and were fined $25 each or 30 days. James Chalfen was fined $25 or 60 days for disorderly conduct.

BISHOP CANEVIN BLESSED BIG BELLS AT DUQUESNE

Three of the largest church bells in the state were dedicated at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, Duquesne, yesterday. The bells were made in Pittsburgh. The exercises, in charge of Bishop Canevin of the Pittsburgh diocese, were largely attended. The Rev. Father Fuller of St. Peter's church, Pittsburgh, delivered a sermon in English at 2 o'clock, after which the bishop blessed the bells. They will be placed in the belfry this week and used next Sunday for the first time. The total weight of the three bells is 3,600 pounds.

SURRENDERS TO POLICE AND ADMITS SHOOTING

JAMESTOWN, N. Y., July 16.—(Special.)—Roger William Landry, who shot and killed Frank Lamphere at Buffalo last Sunday night, walked into the Jamestown police station this afternoon, accompanied by his mother, and gave himself up to Chief Jonnson. Young Landry admits the shooting, but claims self-defense.

SING AS THEY AWAIT DEATH

Sinking of the Takasago Forms a Classic in Military History.

SHIP STRIKES MINE

Sailors Raise National Anthem, Cheer Emperor, and Smoke as They Go Down.

ONLY 133 OF 500 ARE SAVED

(Associated Press Correspondence.)

TOKYO, June 30.—The story of the loss of the Japanese cruiser Takasago, in December last, published only since the destruction of Rojestvensky's fleet, is a military classic.

After the Takasago struck a mine and began to sink, the crew assembled in perfect order on the upper deck, there to await the battle with a stormy sea and death. Captain Ishibashi ordered every man to use a life belt, and directed that no one jump overboard until the ship actually sank. The crew then joined in singing the national anthem, cheered the emperor, and, lastly, sang "Gallant Sailors," their 500 voices ringing out above the storm. After that the men were allowed to smoke, and thus they went calmly to their deaths. Of 500 men who went down with the Takasago only 133 were rescued.

An officer who was aboard gives the following account of the disaster and the remarkable coolness and bravery of the crew:

"The Takasago, fresh from the Kure dockyard, where she had been undergoing repairs, steamed straight to the mouth of the Pechili gulf at the beginning of December. December 11 she was ordered to wait for a collier at a point off Port Arthur. The collier, however, did not put in an appearance, owing to the rough weather. December 12 the sea was still high, and there were no signs of the collier. During the day the cruiser drifted with the waves, and at night cruised slowly at the entrance of the Pechili gulf. She was not accompanied by any other vessel. At 9 p. m. half of the crew were allowed to take a recess, and the men lay down on the decks in their uniforms.

Vessel Strikes a Mine.

"It was an intensely cold night, with a gale and snow. At two minutes past midnight, when at a point 25 miles south of Port Arthur, and on the eastern side of the Miaotao islands, she struck a mine on her starboard and a terrible explosion occurred, the sea leaping high above the ship. The crew took up their emergency positions. The mine had made a breach of about six feet in diameter in the middle of the water line on the side. The water rushed in with tremendous force and the ship listed to the west. Captain Ishibashi was on the bridge and Commander Nakayama beside him.

"The crew worked hard to stop the rush of the water, but in vain. In order to right the vessel, coal and other heavy articles on the left side were thrown overboard, but the ship continued to list heavily. There was no vessel in sight, so that the fate of the ship, as well as that of the crew, seemed sealed.

"Fifteen minutes after striking the mine all the electric lights on board were suddenly extinguished and everything was enveloped in darkness with the exception of a light on the bridge and the glare of the rockets telling of the disaster. Owing to the list, the boats on the starboard could not be launched, with the exception of one. Of those on the larboard a steam launch was destroyed and only a cutter and one other boat were available.

Make Ready for Fate.

"At 12:42 a. m. the vessel communicated the disaster to our squadron by means of wireless telegraph and the crew had nothing to do but to await the sinking of the vessel.

"Capt. Ishibashi on the fore bridge addressed the crew, 500 in number, who had assembled on the upper deck, saying every one on board should equip himself with a life belt. He continued: 'No one must leave the ship until she sinks. We will together share the fate of the vessel.'

"After this speech there was solemn silence. At 1 a. m. the crew sang the national anthem, and at the instance of Capt. Ishibashi, rousing Banzais were shouted for the emperor and the navy. Then the crew sang a naval song styled 'Gallant Sailors.' On the conclusion of this song the crew were permitted to smoke.

"Owing to the list, the captain and others assembled on the bridges and in the masts and netting, and waited for the hour of sinking. The water rose higher and the snow fell thicker. At 1:10 a. m. the vessel suddenly increased her list and after once dipping her masts into the sea, raised herself with a convulsive shudder and then plunged to the bottom. Capt. Ishibashi and the crew were thrown into the sea.

Otowa to the Rescue.

"The three boats which had been lowered from the ship were fortunately afloat with their regulation crews on board. They did their utmost to rescue the officers and men, but the fate of the boats themselves seemed at times precarious. A few minutes later, however, a searchlight was observed in a southeasterly direction. The light approached and disclosed to view the warship Otowa, which had come to the rescue.

"The latter stopped at a distance of 300 metres from the scene of the disaster, illumined the scene with all her searchlights, and dispatched three boats to the rescue. At the sight of the Otowa, the men, who had resigned themselves to death, raised cries for help, thus increasing the sadness of the scene.

"Despite the efforts of the boats, only 133 persons, including Capt. Ishibashi, were saved. More than 360 were lost, including Commander Hakayama. A number of men died from exposure after being picked up."

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, July 16.—Japanese warships have appeared to the northward of the island of Sakhalin and are presumably meditating a descent on the island.

TOKYO, July 16.—It is officially announced that the Russian center, holding Darline and vicinity, was attacked July 11 and offered stubborn resistance. The attack was renewed at dawn of July 12, when the Japanese dislodged the Russians, driving them in the direction of Mauka. This valley insures complete occupation of South Sakhalin by the Japanese.

Eighty prisoners were taken by the Japanese, among whom was Lieut. Maximta. Four field pieces, one machine gun and the ammunition warehouses were captured. The Japanese loss was about 70 men killed or wounded. The Russians lost 160 men.

Reliable information has been received here that the Russian forces in northern Korea have gradually been driven northward since last month and now hold only two positions south of the Tumen river.

The latest information from the front, however, reports the advance south of a large force from Vladivostok, but it is believed the Russians will halt at Nokiefsk, north of the Tumen, and concentrate their forces to make a resolute stand there against the Japanese advance. The rainy season has set in in Manchuria and prevents movements on a large scale.

NIKOLSKOIE, ASIATIC RUSSIA, July 16.—Four Japanese torpedo boat destroyers reconnoitered in Olga and Vladimir bays northeast of Vladivostok, July 14 and 15. They made soundings and examined the shores and were evidently investigating the possibilities of landing troops. They examined the wreck of the Russian cruiser Izumrud by means of divers.

GUNSHU PASS, MANCHURIA, July 16.—Reports that the Russian army is in a precarious condition appear to be without foundation. Investigations made by correspondents show neither flank has been turned and that the Russian wings are more advanced than the center.

The Japanese center is strongly fortified. Many siege guns have been emplaced along the Changtufu-Nanchenze line, and there is a triple ring of forts commanding the Mandarin road.

The Japanese are using novel elephant-trap style of entrenchments, consisting of ditches covered with platforms, which are balanced in the middle and which tilt into vertical positions under the feet of attackers. The Japanese have a captive balloon eight miles south of Nanchenze.

MIKADO IS MERCIFUL.

He Pardons French Spy in Russian Service, Who Was Sentenced to Ten Years' Imprisonment.

TOKYO, July 16.—Premier Katsura, on the authority of Emperor Mutsuhito, has signed a pardon for Capt. A. E. Bougouin and Maki, his Japanese clerk. The amnesty includes freedom from police surveillance.

Capt. Bougouin, a prominent French resident of Tokyo, formerly attached to the French legation here, together with his stepson, F. Strang, who is an Englishman, and Maki, a Japanese clerk, who acted as Bougouin's assistant, were arrested in May charged with being spies for Russia. Bougouin was sentenced July 10 to ten years at hard labor, the judgment declaring he had been engaged in searching for and reporting artillery secrets. Maki confessed and was also sentenced. Strang was released after the preliminary examination in June, there not being enough evidence at hand to warrant holding him.

THE IZUMRUD IS A WRECK.

Japanese Admiral Reports There Is No Hope of Refloating Russian Cruiser Sunk by Commander.

TOKYO, July 16.—Admiral Yamada, commanding a squadron sent north on a reconnaissance, reports that the Russian cruiser Izumrud is a complete wreck and that there is no hope of refloating her. The vessel lies beached, heading west southwest on the northern point of the southern entrance to Vladimir bay, about 20 miles northeast of Vladivostok.

A report by Capt. Baron Ferzen of the Izumrud, said that during the battle of the Sea of Japan the Izumrud was cut off from the remainder of the fleet and steamed at full speed for Vladivostok with the Japanese cruisers in pursuit. Subsequently he changed his course and made for Vladimir bay, arriving there on the night of May 29. At 1:30 o'clock in the morning of May 30 the Izumrud ran on a reef at the entrance of the bay and, being short of coal, the captain ordered the crew ashore and blew up the vessel.

Refuses to Vacate When Ordered.

W. E. Simpson of 144 St. Clair street was arrested last night and locked up in the East End police station as a suspicious person. It is alleged that Simpson was employed by the Standard Automobile Company as engineer, was discharged recently, and since then has been hanging about the place. He was asked to remain away, but refused to do this, so an officer was sent to the place and upon Simpson's refusing to vacate he locked him up.

LANDOWNER SLAIN BY AN AGITATOR

Executive Committee of the Russian Zemstvo Is Ordered to Disperse.

DEFY THE POLICE OF MOSCOW

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

MITAU, RUSSIA, July 16.—Baron Bistrom, a large land owner, has been killed, and Baron Hahn, another land owner, wounded by agitators.

MOSCOW, July 16.—A meeting of the executive committee of the zemstvo organization in the house of M. Golovin, president of the Moscow zemstvo, today was visited by a detail of police and ordered to disperse. The zemstvo refused and continued their discussion of the arrangements for the forthcoming congress. Afterwards they demanded permission to hold the congress, the meeting of which on July 16 the authorities prohibited.

The fighting organization of the social revolutionists has issued a proclamation announcing that the death sentence pronounced against Count Shuvaloff, chief of police here, who was assassinated July 11, was executed by one of its members "on account of the black and cruel activity of this satrap of Odessa (where Count Shuvaloff was formerly prefect) and his subsequent return to the active service of reaction at the call of Trepoff, the pan-Russian dictator, to stamp out the revolution in Moscow."

The proclamation concludes:

"Let this execution serve as a joyful signal to the Russian millions in revolt and as the death knell on the dying autocracy. Let it remind all dogs of the autocracy of national justice."

WARSAW, July 16.—General Maximovich, the governor-general, has issued an order forbidding illegal assemblies, processions and gatherings in the streets throughout Poland. The government now feels strong enough to enforce the fullest order and to take stern measures against all manifestatants.

The directors of the Warsaw & Vienna railroad have issued an order permitting the use, on equal footing, of both the Polish and Russian languages by the employes. This compromise averts a strike by the workmen, which was threatened if they were not permitted to use the Polish language in the transaction of railway business.

KUTAIS, July 16.—During the rendition of a musical program in a public garden here today two bombs were thrown. No one was killed.

ST. PETERSBURG, July 16.—Investigation of a report that soldiers are being carried on board the warships in the Black sea to overawe possible mutineers proves it to be untrue.

"OLD MAN" GEARY IS HOST AT HIS ANNUAL PICNIC

He and His Seven Sons Entertain Large Number of Friends at Thalia Villa.

"Old Man" Geary, chief of Pickering's advertising staff, had his annual picnic yesterday at Thalia Villa, the Geary homestead, out the Perrysville road. It was the fourth event of its kind and an improvement on all prior ones. All afternoon and evening about 150 friends of Geary's participated in the fun and voted the "Old Man" a jolly entertainer.

Every guest took off his good clothes and donned a suit of overalls and a big straw hat. Some of the suits had convict stripes and some were red, white and blue. Down the creek at the "Bungalow," all the afternoon there was music and no restraint upon anyone. Those who were too nice to wear overalls that did not fit them, were initiated into the secrets of "Old Man" Geary and the Seven Sons.

Each guest, as he entered the grounds, was given a big shipping tag on which were printed the words:

"Take me home. I was at Thalia Villa on July 16."

Besides this a small cow bell was tied on everyone so that no one had an excuse for not arriving home after leaving the party. Early in the evening there was a vaudeville show. In this were Plunkit, the talking comedian; Seifferthoski and Mammauxtogic, in a fierce Russian and Japanese finish fight; Geary in a 15-minute talk; Tieche and Gieseeke, comedy musicians; Midget Martin, and Rolyat, the chalkist. Plenty of refreshments were served during the entire afternoon, and the affair ended with a big dinner that emphasized the fact that Geary knows how to show one a good time.

TO BEAR MESSAGE FROM THE CZAR

M. Witte's Instructions, However, Are Kept Strictly Secret by Foreign Office.

EDITORS GET INTO A ROW

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

ST. PETERSBURG, July 16.—M. Witte spent an hour with Mr. Meyer, the American ambassador, at the Kleinmichel palace today, discussing the forthcoming peace conference. Before leaving for Paris next Wednesday M. Witte will have another audience with the emperor. In the meantime he must pay a round of official visits to all the imperial ministers. M. Witte is expected to be the bearer of a personal message from the emperor to President Roosevelt.

M. Hartwig, director of the first department of the foreign office, today said: "Reports pretending to reveal the character of the instructions to the Russian plenipotentiaries are mere guess-work. These instructions have been seen by only four persons, the emperor, M. Witte, Foreign Minister Lamsdorff and myself. They cover over 20 pages and are very detailed."

M. Hartwig pronounced the stories that M. Muravieff's displacement was the result of intrigues by Foreign Minister Lamsdorff to be pure inventions.

Prince Mestchersky, editor of Grashdanin, in warmly supporting M. Witte's appointment, declares him to be the only Russian statesman equal to the task set him.

Reports are printed that M. Putkovsky, formerly Russian financial agent at New York, will be added to the commission or will replace as one of the counsellors to the plenipotentiaries M. Shipoff, director of the Russian treasury department.

Count Ignatieff, instead of Prince Sviatopolk-Mirsky, will succeed M. Boulkin as minister of the interior, according to the "Slovo."

Prince Oukhtomsky, editor of the St. Petersburg Viedomosti, has brought suit against the Novoe Vremya and M. Skaalkovsky for slander. M. Skaalkovsky, in the Novoe Vremya, has not been sparing in his attacks on M. Muravieff, and on July 11 Prince Oukhtomsky took M. Skaalkovsky to task in the Viedomosti, whereupon the former writer assailed the prince, saying he was no fool, but recalling Victor Hugo's observation that "While every man has a right to be a fool he should not abuse the right."

Prince Oukhtomsky was also arraigned for alleged subsidies which he received from the government and for "his interest in railroads and fantastic monopolies mines which compelled him out of gratitude to compose service panegyrics." It was thought these attacks would result in a duel between these two writers.

The Bourse Gazette prints a long article attacking the Northeastern Siberian company of St. Petersburg, which is presided over by M. Contionkvsky, having Admiral Abaza, of Yalu fame, among the stockholders, but which the paper says is really managed by John Rosin, an American, for the benefit of Americans. The Bourse Gazette asserts the company has taken entire possession of the spacious Chahotsky peninsula, where mining privileges are denied to Russians. It characterizes the whole affair as "a warning against the American invasion of Russian territory which is connived at by the Yalu scoundrels."

SUBMARINE BOAT HOLDS FAST TO ITS DEAD CREW

Bodies Become Firmly Fixed Under the Engines of the Farafadet.

[Associated Press Cable to The Gazette.]

BIZERTA, TUNIS, July 16.—The mournful task of removing the bodies of the crew of the submarine boat Farfadet, which sank at the entrance of the port of Sidi Abdallah July 1, and which was towed into drydock yesterday, after incessant efforts to raise her, is proceeding slowly. Owing to the displacement of the machinery through the action of the water, some of the bodies became firmly fixed beneath the engines and other apparatus, and the men engaged in the work were compelled to attach ropes to the bodies in order to disengage them.

It is now apparent that four of the men who occupied the forward compartment were drowned immediately the accident occurred. Lieut. Robin was found lying on his back with his arms extended. Nearby was the quartermaster, whose jersey caught in a hook close to the faulty hatch, which caused the catastrophe, evidently while trying to escape. Eight men in the after compartment were those who responded to the divers' rappings during the 32 hours after the sinking of the submarine. From the condition of the interior of the vessel it was seen that the crew struggled hard against their fate, and endeavored to stop the leaking hatch with their jerseys. The water, however, gained, while the air supply diminished.

Only four bodies have as yet been recovered, and these are almost unrecognizable. Owing to the delay in removing the bodies the authorities have put off the funeral ceremony until Wednesday next. The Mediterranean fleet will participate in the funeral, and the bodies will be sent to France for interment.

Murder Is Suspected.

STEUBENVILLE, O., July 15.—(Special.)—An unknown man, who was found badly injured in an alley near a saloon on Friday night, has been identified as James Cumelius, a bricklayer of Painesville, O. Alose Chivers, proprietor of the "Pheasant Dreams" saloon, and his bartender, Tom Jenkins, are held on suspicion.

The news regarding tomorrow's remnant sale will be dwelt upon in enlarged form this afternoon.

New Summer Garments for Women, a Repetition.

As we have already hinted, we help manufacturers clean up their summer stocks, and here is an instance of how we go about it—how successful we are in getting newest summer garments to sell for prices that have shrunk very much below original prices.

This news was given in brief form Saturday afternoon, but it is of such an exceptional character that we must call your attention to it again this morning.

White Linen Coat Suits, $10.00 from $20.00.

There are just fifty of these white linen coat suits, and they landed in the receiving room Saturday afternoon—ready this morning, second floor, West. The quality of the linen is extra, the coats have the popular corset fitting back and are trimmed with lace and embroidery.

Washable Skirts, $3.75; worth $6.00 to $12.00.

Had a sale of these a short time back and you took every last one we had—until now the railroad held us up on delivery of the goods. Saturday there were 600 came in. The materials are handkerchief linen, imported rep, piq re, butcher's linen—in white, natural, blue and green.

Some of them will be sold for more than a third less. TEST OF MIDVALE ARMOR TO BE MADE NEXT WEEK

On the Result Depends the Decision of the Navy Department in Awarding Contract for Plates for Battleships.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, July 16.—The first official test of Midvale armor will be made at Indian Head next week. Officials of the Midvale Steel company have notified Rear Admiral N. E. Mason that the trial plate will be shipped Monday or Tuesday from its works to Indian Head, and the naval authorities are preparing to make the test as early next week as possible. Upon the result of this test depends the decision of the navy department in letting the first contract for 1,000 tons to the Philadelphia concern.

An unofficial test of the Midvale armor was made on December 19, 1904, and this was so satisfactory that a contract for 6,000 tons was let to that company. But it was alleged that the Midvale company could not produce armor in sufficient quantities to comply with the terms of this contract. To investigate this charge a special commission was appointed which reported that the Midvale concern was not equipped for the demands of the government and the secretary of the navy awarded the contract to the Carnegie and Bethlehem companies.

This brought forth such a protest from the Midvale officials, who carried their grievance to the president and the secretary of the navy conditionally revoked his order. He issued an order awarding to the Midvale company a contract for 1,000 tons of armor on the condition that its product stood a satisfactory test, which will be made this week.

If the Midvale people are able to manufacture armor that will stand the test and deliver its product according to the contract it will be awarded. Otherwise the contract will be given to the Bethlehem and Carnegie works, according to the original order of the secretary of the navy.

Much, it is stated, will depend upon the ballistic qualities of Midvale armor. No doubt is expressed in naval circles of the Midvale company to produce armor that will comply with the other requirements of the government, and if the new concern shows the test called for in this respect it is thought that it will secure the contract. It is proposed to use Midvale armor in building the battleships Mississippi and Idaho if the Philadelphia concern secures a contract.

Argentina does not enjoy the prospect of having the American beef combination on its hands. Just what Argentina fears has not been explained. It is not likely the packers could raise the price of meat in that country without also raising the price of beef cattle for export, and American enterprise would put life into Argentina commerce.

In our news columns is published a graphic account of the sinking of a Japanese battleship some months ago. The splendid discipline of the ship's company stands out above the fury of the elements and goes far to explain the Japanese naval success. Men who can face the forces of nature with such intrepidity can be depended on in any emergency. They exemplify the highest type of human courage.

Secretary of the Navy Bonaparte is taking a lively interest in the naming of some new naval vessels, including a couple of colliers. He objects to "Nestor" as a title suggesting great age and does not approve "Diamond" for a coal carrying craft, though he does not explain his reasons. He suggests some mythological names, himself. How would it do to give the naval coal boats good American names, signifying their calling?

Denial is made of the report that Collinsburg is suffering an epidemic of typhoid fever. It is said there are but four cases in the village. In this situation one can but wonder what malicious instinct could have prompted the circulation of the first report. It could not have been for gain, for there is no way in which anyone could reap profit commensurate with the offense committed. A penalty of $100 attaches to the giving of false information for publication and it is inconceivable why any person should risk that penalty to circulate a report of that character.

Pending negotiations for an armistice the Japanese troops are pressing their advance in northern Korea. They have routed the Russian posts in that quarter until but two remain south of the Tumen river. A large force has been hurried out of Vladivostok to stop the Japanese advance before it reaches Russian territory, which is the apparent object. It is but another example of the clever appreciation by the Japanese of the situation and the possible advantage to be gained without much bloodshed, while Russian pride withholds request for an armistice.

Gov. Herrick is giving attention to his campaign for re-election thus early. He is not frightened by the opposition, but is a careful man who appreciates the value of looking after the details. Having promulgated the doctrine that the professional lobbyist must go from Ohio, Gov. Herrick wants it backed by a popular majority of such magnitude that its significance cannot be mistaken. To that end he is fixing his fences and preparing his campaign and the people of Ohio will be with him in November. This is a far more important issue than the difference 'twixt tweedle dee and tweedle dum in the matter of local option.

Remarkable lenience has been shown Japan in the case of the attache of the French legation, who was recently convicted and sentenced to 10 years imprisonment for acting as a Russian spy. The man has been pardoned. He was caught "with the goods on him," to use a police phrase, and civilized usage would have sanctioned harsher measures than those taken in the first instance. The pardon is a surprise and it is another evidence of the lack of malice in the Japanese nature. This ancient race, new born, has been giving the younger nations of the civilized world many lessons in the philosophic temperament applied to war.

An estimate by the treasury statisticians gives a probable production of gold this year aggregating $400,000,000. This will be the largest annual output of record. It is not needed to answer the Populist question as to where the gold is to come from, but it puts a final end to that financial fallacy. It is more important in another aspect. It means a cheapening of money, the medium of exchange, and that is another name for higher prices of other commodities. Readjustment in this direction has been going on for some years and will probably continue for years to come, though growth of population and industrial activity are constantly operating in the balance of the scale.

M. Witte, Envoy.

A sufficient reply to the recent rumor that M. Witte had quarreled violently with Czar Nicholas is afforded by the fact that his passage has been booked, Cherbourg to New York, on the Wilhelm der Grosse for July 28. He will be accompanied by a number of his distinguished Russian diplomatists and Dr. de Maartens, the famous Russian authority on international law. M. Witte comes to the peace conference clothed with plenipotentiary powers—the most hopeful augury of peace given since President Roosevelt interested himself in bringing the belligerent powers together.

M. Witte is easily the soundest statesman of the Russian empire. He is, moreover, a man of peace. He was opposed to war in the far east and he opposed the policies that provoked the war. For years together he kept Russia out of military embroilments and diverted the imperial resources to internal improvements. The Siberian railroad is really a monument to his judgment, and if he had been allowed to have his way there would have been no war until that road had been brought to a state of efficiency capable of supplying the sinews, at least.

There is good reason to believe it was M. Witte who prompted the czar to take the initiative in calling a general peace conference at The Hague. He was influential then. The war party triumphed over him and his star waned. When Nicholas turned to him as a peace plenipotentiary it was a hopeful sign. It was the first evidence the czar had really begun to appreciate the errors Russia had committed against M. Witte's protests.

M. Witte will be welcomed to this country in the most friendly spirit. Japan will recognize his ability and his good will. His personality will go far to inaugurate the negotiations on a right basis and the fact that he would not come without large powers gives promise of outcome to the conferences. M. Witte is apparently the man for the hour.

Robbers Are Foiled.

Two incidents of last week must give gratification to law-abiding citizens. A Wabash paymaster, held up on his way to pay the Port Huron dockmen, saved the cash and got the robber. He was suitably rewarded. A Birmingham paymaster was robbed, but within a few minutes one robber was shot and the money recovered.

This sort of thing will do much to discourage the industry of waylaying paymasters. This particular crime had threatened to become epidemic. The atrocious murder of Contractor Ferguson in Washington county inaugurated a series of attempts on paymasters, until it was thought payment in checks would have to be universally adopted. The difficulties of the check system in paying large numbers of ignorant foreigners are many and great, or it might have been generally adopted long ago. These late failures of the robbers, however, show the tide does not always run in one direction. Robbery is hazardous at all times and robbery of paymasters may now be classed as extra-hazardous.

Tragedy of the Farfadet.

Most pathetic is the tragedy of the French submarine, the Farfadet. The docking of the vessel has enabled examination and the work of removing bodies of the victims has begun. Four of the men were obviously drowned at the time of the first accident; eight survived for hours, making a frantic struggle to escape. It is all very horrible. Yet it will have no effect in stopping the construction of that type of war craft. The perils of the submarine are possibly greater in peace than those of other vessels, but the difference is not great. Men can always be found to face them.

There are just as great dangers in peaceful industry. Western Pennsylvania has witnessed many coal mine disasters easily comparable with the tragedy of the Farfadet. Sometimes all of the victims have been killed outright. Not infrequently all or a portion have been entombed alive to wait, hoping for rescue, while the vitiated air supply was slowly exhausted. That was precisely the fate of the eight men in the forward hatch of the submarine. They died in the discharge of their duty an unusually harrowing death. That is what miners have done, caged behind a fall of rock. Others will die in like manner and others will take their places. There is no way to avoid it; it is only possible to take every known precaution to prevent.

Pope Pius and France.

The breaking off of relations between the French government and the vatican is to be interpreted as part of a reform movement that is taking place within the Roman Catholic church, according to the Rev. Prof. Charles A. Briggs, D. D., of Union Theological seminary. In the course of an article in the latest number of the North American Review, Dr. Briggs, after eulogizing the spirituality and pious virtues of Pope Pius X., declares the holy father is at the head of a sharply-defined movement to promote a revival of spirituality in the church, and to that end is determined to remove incompetent and worldly bishops wherever they may be found and to appoint men of higher spiritual character to the vacant sees.

It is this firm purpose, according to Dr. Briggs, that has brought Pope Pius into conflict with the French government, and not at all the mere question of asserting the papal prerogative. His removal of certain French bishops, which ultimately brought him to open rupture with the French government, was not inspired by any secret policy of the vatican, but by the simple determination to effect, if possible, a revival of spiritual religion in the French church, whose decadence in this matter had become a by-word and a reproach.

In his remarkably interesting article, Dr. Briggs brings to light a number of contemporary facts and incidents which strongly support his presentation of Pope Pius as one of the most powerful reformers who has ever occupied the papal throne. They shed a new and lustrous light on a pontiff who has already won the esteem and admiration of the world for his modesty, his simplicity, his shrewd insight and his open-mindedness. Concerning Pius' conflict with France, Dr. Briggs says: "It is difficult to see how the state can hope to win in such a warfare, when the church is prepared to sacrifice all its property and civil rights, and to suffer persecution in defense of what Scotch Presbyterians, in a similar situation, called the 'crown rights of Jesus Christ.'" Prof. Briggs, however, is only partly right. The movement for separation of church and state in France antedates the pontifical accession of Pope Pius IX.

Persistent Misrepresentation.

Our cotemporary, the Dispatch, continues to misrepresent the attitude and the motives of The Gazette in the matter of reducing the Fifth avenue hump. The Gazette has not opposed and is not opposing that improvement. It has said it ought to be made as other street improvements have been effected and, recognizing the difficulties in the way of that rational proceeding, has conceded that the general taxpayers might be asked to bear a reasonable burden—say the actual physical cost of a cut of 12 feet.

That is not enough for the Dispatch, apparently. It wants something more, but does not make its desires clear. The Gazette demands accurate information on the total cost of the proposed improvement and it demands unconditional waivers of all damages on the part of all property owners in the affected district. The Dispatch pretends to approve this demand, but it also pretends to believe The Gazette wants this information too quickly. On that point we can join issue with our dyspeptic cotemporary. All of that information should have been laid before councils before they were asked to pass the ordinance authorizing an issue of bonds. The information was promised last year, but was not given. The damages were not waived by many properties up to the day of election. The proposition was defeated. Delay at this time is equally dangerous, for the public condones no policy of evasion and is suspicious of the withholding of figures. Grant boulevard does not inspire confidence in hump estimates.

Property owners who expect large indirect benefits from reduction of the hump might raise a purse to defray part of the cost. There is no law to prevent.

It has not occurred to the paragraphers to say that Count Shuvaloff of Moscow could not do it without assistance. In Allegheny he might have.

Emperor William's flirtation with Sweden, Berlin explains, has no political significance. Yet the emperor is known as an uncertain quantity.

Might Change His Mind.

The marriage service had proceeded without a hitch so far, but the responses proved a stumbling block. Neither the groom nor his partner had received much in the "eddication" line; so, when the parson in his most dignified tone asked the usual question, "Wilt thou have this woman to be thy wedded wife?" Jack immediately answered, "I 'ull."

"You must say, 'I will,'" corrected the cleric, and asked the question over again.

"I 'ull," responded Jack, more firmly than ever.

The irate clergyman threatened to stop the service altogether if the response was not properly given. That was too much for Sally, who broke in quite savagely—

"Garn along wid ye, mon; thee 'ull 'ave our Jack sayin he won't in a minute or two wid ye worryin'."

The service was resumed.—Mariners' Advocate.

During the South African war the censorship of soldiers' letters home was very strict. One soldier who always sent an account of the doings of the regiment, which account was always blotted out by the censor, laid a plan for revenge. At the foot of his next letter he wrote: "Look under the stamp." The censor did so, after spending considerable time in steaming the stamp from the envelope. And he found these words: "Was it hard to get off?"—London Tid-Bits.

Spirit of Summertime.

O, Spirit of the Summertime!
Bring back the roses to the dells;
The swallow from her distant clime,
The honey bee from drowsy cells.

Bring back the friendship of the sun;
The gilded evenings, calm and late,
When merry children homeward run,
And peeping stars bid lovers wait.

Bring back the singing, and the scent
Of meadowlands at dewy prime;—
Oh, bring again my heart's content,
Thou Spirit of the Summertime!

QUIET OBSERVATIONS

By ERASMUS WILSON.

"Is a woman getting what is coming to her when she marries a man who is all right, but who afterwards turns out to be all wrong?" asks a correspondent.

She then goes on to relate how one of the sweetest, purest and most loving of girls was wooed and won by a man of good family and much culture. His father left him ample fortune, but he developed a taste for ball games, racing and other sports and squandered it.

"It was a distinct shock to his many friends," she continues, "to learn that he was becoming dissipated, but still greater to learn that he was practically a bankrupt. His loving wife is heartbroken and fast becoming a physical wreck.

"I would like to know if you think she is getting what is coming to her. I don't, for she is deserving of everything good."

Our correspondent seems to think that this is a rare case, if not the very worst on record.

Were she hooked up in the history of any city or considerable town, or permitted to see behind the veil that hides one-half of life from the gaze of the other half, she would have to change her estimate of the awfulness of this particular case.

While it is a sad case, it is not unusual, and the causes are so simple and reasonable that no one can justly complain of the results, though sad they be.

* * *

Even our indignant correspondent will agree that the man in the case got what was coming to him.

The mere fact that he came of a fine family, had a thrifty, upright father and a good mother, could only serve to get him into good society. After that he would have to do the rest.

Nor could the mere fact that he was well schooled and highly cultured retain for him the respect and confidence of schoolmates and friends.

Nor could his father's name and money insure him success in the business world, no matter how advantageous and promising his start.

It was up to him to make good on all that he promised at the outset of his career as a gentleman, scholar and business man.

That a simple, loving, ambitious girl, fresh from seminary and finishing school, should see in this man all that she had learned to believe of men is most reasonable. No doubt she had been kept out of the hurly-burly of life, and had formed her ideals from books, many of which she had read on the quiet when at school, or in the seclusion of her own room.

Her parents, knowing his parents—for we are left to infer that they lived in the same Ohio town—naturally expected him to follow in the footsteps of his father.

And what is more natural, or, rather, what is more common, mistake though it be, than for a mother to hope that her daughter may not have the trials in her life that she had to endure, and over which she triumphed with credit and increased happiness?

* * *

Had the girl consulted a hard-headed, practical, successful man, he would probably have told her to let the young man go, and then to keep an eye on the industrious young men drawing salaries, and particularly on those who had mothers to support, or families to assist, noting whether their places were vacant on baseball days.

Of course, she would have called him an old simpleton, if not to his face, certainly to her friends.

He would have probably told her that sports and high living do not mix well with business and morality. Also that wealth is so unstable and so prone to take to itself wings and fly away that it is only by the closest attention that it can be kept at all.

But she would hardly have understood it, for she had not been taught and trained so that she could understand. If only she could sing and play a little, chatter fluently and dance divinely she was all that her mother and society could desire.

It would have been surprising if, under these circumstances, she hadn't married him. And in marrying him she got just what she was educated and trained to get.

That she was mistaken in the man there is no doubt, but who was to blame? Didn't she follow the advice of those who had been advising her all the days of her life?

You may wonder why heaven didn't miraculously interpose and save her from her fate.

What would have been the use when the law and the prophets were before them? Though one had risen from the dead, they wouldn't have believed.

* * *

Of the young man it is hardly worth while speaking, except to say he ran his course and reached his legitimate goal, taking with him all the confidence, respect and affection that had been reposed in him.

The law and the prophets were before his eyes; that is, the natural laws pertaining to business and the wisdom of those who had been successful and who had witnessed the failure of others, and had divined the cause thereof.

With these before his eyes he simply turned into ways which he knew to be strewn with wrecks, many of which were horrible beyond the skill of the pen to portray.

His father had often thought to himself, no doubt, and probably said to his boy that he should never have to sweep out the store, tend fires, carry packages and rustle barrels and boxes as he had done.

Might it not have been better for the boy, and for all concerned, if he had been required to foot it along the path his father trod until he had reached where his father stood, and then taken the reins? Wouldn't he have had a wiser head and steadier hand? True, he might not have had such a good record in field athletics, nor have had his name mentioned so often in sporting papers.

That he got what he went out to fetch none can deny, nor can it be doubted that he is now enjoying the proceeds of the legacy left by his father.

* * *

It is a mistake, a terrible, a costly and too often a fatal mistake on the part of parents to bring their children up entirely different from the ways in which they were brought up.

In slaving her own life out in order that her daughter may not have to work as she worked to build a home a mother is surely paving a way to failure and to misery for her. It is no credit to a girl not to be able to do a woman's work in the home, and surely it is ruinous for her to lounge around in lawns and fine linens while her mother is toiling indoors.

The mistakes of parents in this particular have entailed more social failures and more heart misery than any others that can be mentioned.

This is a workaday world, and the boy and girl, or the man and woman who do not accept it as such, seek something to do that is worth while, and do it well and faithfully, will not only prove failures themselves, but will entail failure upon countless others, with all its manifold miseries.

But who is to blame for the failure, wreck and ruin in the case cited by our Ohio correspondent?

It is up to you, and if you fail to take it to heart and consider it carefully and honestly you will have failed in doing your part to society. You should satisfy yourself as to the causes leading to this fearful failure, and devise ways by which such calamities may be avoided in the future, for like causes are abundant, and you know that it is an eternal truth that like causes lead to like results.

Japanese Favorite Tune.

"Marching Through Georgia" is said to be the favorite tune of the Japanese soldiers. Native music has no matches, as it is without "time." Patriotic Japanese composers have, however, since the war began remedied this defect by adapting various foreign pieces. The soldiers have picked up the new airs and sing with great delight the Japanese words fitted to them.—Kansas City Journal.

TALKED OF IN GOTHAM

By FRANK A. PARKER.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, July 16.—Deep down beneath the cold exterior of this big city is a heart as warm as the heart of the smallest village of the country, where every man's hand is ready to do the bidding of his neighbor in trouble. To the casual observer, New York and its people are too intent upon minding their own business, too ardent in the chase after the elusive golden shekel, to play the good Samaritan to the wounded man by the roadside. But this is only on the surface. In the hurly-burly of life we are apt to miss the fine points of a city, to see only the sordid and the mean, because we do not stop to look deeper into the lives of those by whom we are surrounded but do not know. It is only when some incident, small in itself, perhaps, is forced upon our notice that we realize that the people of the city are just as human, just as full of sympathy and the milk of human kindness, as the people of the less thickly settled districts where every man knows his neighbor and feels almost akin to him.

Yesterday morning late sleepers in a number of apartment houses surrounding a court were awakened by a voice of rare purity, though without training, singing the first strains of "The Holy City." Wondering, they rubbed their eyes, listened again as though in a dream, then, peering from their windows, saw an aged man, white haired, ill and supported by crutches, and from his throat came the song. In every window in the court was a listener, and when the old man saw the audience he had attracted, his voice broke and the song ended in something like a sob.

From the Heart to the Purse.

Not a sound came from the audience for a moment, then there fell upon the hard pavement of the court a rain of small silver, dimes and quarters and half dollars. Without stopping to pick up the thank offering that was his, the old man told his story. "I have a permit to go to the hospital," he said in a broken voice, "and I was going there this morning, but I was told that I would need money for the little things that the hospital does not give, and for fees to the attendants who have it in their power to make one's stay more pleasant if they will. I knew no other way to earn a little money except by somehow touching the hearts of the good people of the city. The janitor gave me permission to stand here and sing to you. I thank him, and I thank you, for now I have plenty and to spare. If you will permit me I will try to finish my song." The old man lifted up his voice again, and when he finished there were tears in eyes long unused to tears, and another rain of silver followed. And who is there to say that it was not "more blessed to give than to receive?"

The Lame Helping the Blind.

At Times Square there are two newsboys who are pals. One is lame, the other blind. Together they are fighting for life, helping each other the best they can. And both of them seem to be under the special guardianship of the corner policeman. A few evenings ago the blind lad was on the side of the street opposite his usual station talking with his lame friend. When he started to cross Broadway the lame boy, who has lost both his legs above the knees, took the blind boy's hand and led him to the middle of the street. "Here, John," he shouted to the policeman, "help Jimmie over." And the officer met him half way, took the blind boy's hand and gently led him to the curbstone, while the lame boy went back to his station and took up anew his cry of "evening paper." This is an almost daily occurrence, and the policeman, when the crowds are not too dense in the square, spends as much of his time as his duties will permit looking after his two little friends. Many men will go out of their way to patronize these two boys, who are cheerfully fighting life's battle while so badly handicapped.

Seeking the "Heart Interest."

The daily newspapers of New York show with the keenest insight their belief in the great heartedness of their readers by the fact that those stories that develop from day to day which have what is called "the heart interest" are always displayed and run to the full extent of their detail. During the past week we have had several examples of this journalistic effort to reach the hearts of the readers. Perhaps the most touching incident was that of the woman who refused to prosecute a poor mother who had stolen a baby carriage. The thief had carried her little child as far as she could when she saw the carriage. Stealthily she drew it from the yard, placed her baby in it and wheeled it away. A policeman arrested her and the owner of the carriage promised to appear in court as prosecuting witness. But when she heard the story of privation and poverty told by the thief she had not the heart to see her sent to prison, but instead gave her the baby carriage, and sent her on her way. "I feel that she needs the carriage more than I do," the owner told the officers.

Sacrifices Hair to Save Mother.

Another story of the past week that occupied much space was how Amy Russell, aged 12, cut off her golden hair and tried to sell it that she could get medicines for her mother and little brother who were ill. While walking along the street one day recently Amy heard a woman say: "I would give $50 for a head of hair like that child's." Believing that her hair was really worth $100, Amy cut it off and hunted up the woman. To her dismay she was told that she had misunderstood the remark, and her grief was so poignant that the woman had not the heart to send her away empty handed. So she took the hair, gave the child $5, and promised to see that she got more for it. The story was told to the woman's friends, and a purse was made up to care for the invalids about whom Amy was so solicitous that she was willing to give up her chief glory in their behalf.

STATE GLEANINGS

The Big Trout Landed.

Samuel H. Hare, a lawyer of Altoona, has bagged the largest brook trout ever taken from the waters of that section. At Rover, Blair county, after a desperate struggle lasting an hour, he succeeded in landing, with the assistance of a companion, a fish measuring 28 inches and weighing five pounds. Wonderful stories of the prowess of this fish have been told for several years. It has been hooked often but invariably has snapped the line and disappeared. It was known among fishermen by the name of "Jumbo" and "Jumbo" was accused of decimating the waters of smaller inhabitants. Several times application was made to the fish commissioner to take it illegally, but he refused consent.—Bellefonte Republican.

Snake Stories.

John Smith, who lives near the fair grounds, captured a fine pet yesterday in the form of a four-foot rattler. He captured the reptile at the box spring above the fair grounds, carrying it home on several sticks. He has the snake on exhibition in a glass-covered box at his home. It has ten rattles. A large copperhead snake was found lying stretched out on the top rail of the banister of the porch at the residence of Charles Decherenof in Boydstown yesterday afternoon. The snake had evidently laid there for some time and the wonder is that some of the small children which played around it were not bitten. Mr. Decherenof dispatched it with a poker.—Pennsylvania Hawkeye.

Wanted to Be a Mail Carrier.

The employes at the Pennsylvania depot and mail clerk on the 3:27 train Saturday afternoon had a little excitement that they are not anxious to experience again for a long time. A letter pouch and a tie sack were thrown from the train. The outgoing pouches were placed on the train by the one whose duty it is to look after that work and he turned to pick up the incoming mail and take it to the office, when the letter pouch was no where visible. No one had seen the sack disappear and it could not be found. Finally it was located at the postoffice where it had been taken by a small boy and what that boy was told will do him good for months to come.—Scottdale Independent.

Moss for Fishing Bait.

The R. N. Nelson boys went to the Pines east of town Monday and gathered from one of the drying winter swamps out about the old Hubbard dam, in five minutes, a cracky wagon load of moss. This they sold to the Muskoka, Canada, fishing excursionists, to keep their bait in from now on to the close of the fishing season. Mr. Will Keck informs us that the common angleworm will live and grow indefinitely in this mossy bed so long as it is kept a bit moist, and indeed the club like realized handsomely on their Mercer fishing bait, on coming away.—Western Press.

Husband Didn't Want to Hear Her.

A lady who proposed to spend the Fourth in orthodox style, accordingly arranged for the reading of the Declaration of Independence and other appropriate ceremonies, such as saluting the flag, etc. When the time came and the program was about to be carried out she found the only copy of the Declaration of Independence on hand missing. Only one person could have taken the missing document and that was her husband, an old soldier. She now seems to enjoy the joke herself.—Clarion Republican.

Wants to Break the Monotony.

Business in the line of issuing marriage licenses is so dull at the Elk county court house—since the month of roses passed into history—that we shall not be in the least surprised if—in a fit of desperation—one of the handsome and accomplished lady clerks in the prothonotary's office would accept a good offer herself to marry rather than have nothing at all doing in the way of marriage licenses. There hasn't been a license issued for several days.—Ridgway Advocate.

A Butterfly Chaser.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Mahaffey of Tarentum are rusticating at the Saxonburg mineral springs with great beneficial results. William has grown quite proficient in the sport of chasing the butterflies here and reminds one of a typical city messenger boiling around the depot corner just in time to catch hold of the rear end of the train. He is also quite a fisherman, as he and Mr. Smith of Allegheny caught a string of fine suckers last week.—Tarentum Times.

Compliment from His Girl.

Just outside of Berlin a crowd of Somerset young folks on their way to White Horse Tuesday were attracted by the bawling of a cow whose calf had gotten down over an embankment. The calf was returned to its mother's side and one of the young men was telling his girl how the cow actually licked his hand in gratitude when she told him that it wasn't gratitude at all, the cow only thought she had twins.—Meyersdale Commercial.

Wheat Along the Chillisquaque.

The wheat is now nearly all out. It is not yet hauled into the barns and the fields nearly shocked present a very pretty appearance. County Commissioner Henry Cooper, speaking for his locality along the Chillisquaque, says the wheat, although somewhat short in straw, will be an average crop. Last year's wheat commands one dollar a bushel. Nothing like this figure, however, will be paid for new wheat.—Montour American.

Faithful Rural Carrier.

On last Monday Cyrus P. Markle, carrier on rural free delivery route No. 1, from this place, completed the sixth year in the service. "Cy" has been a faithful servant of his Uncle Samuel, and is a favorite of the patrons of the route. He has the distinction of being the second oldest carrier in point of service in the county, the oldest being William Heil, carrier on route No. 1 from Ruffsdale.—West Newton Times-Sun.

Postponed His Decision.

Very gallantly Justice Perry Weimer attempted to help a heavy Garrett county lady out of a wagon last Saturday, but by a miscalculation by one or the other a majority of the lady fellows on the judge. An important decision, due that day, could not, in consequence, be handed down until Monday and on Wednesday the judge was out again.—Frostburg Journal.

Many Muscalonge Taken.

The fishing on the lake is much better than usual this season and an exceptionally large number of muscalonge are being taken. Several good fish are brought in every day. Last week, Thursday and Friday, 20 lunge were caught in the lake, 14 being taken Thursday afternoon. The weight ran from four to eleven pounds.—Edinboro Independent.

Rode in an Automobile.

One of the features of a large Fourth of July parade at Uniontown last week was the appearance in the procession of Mrs. Mary McKittrick, who is one hundred and seven years of age. She rode in an automobile and had a kind word to say to all who met her.—Somerset Standard.

Huckleberries Abundant.

Huckleberries by the thousands of quarts are being shipped from the coal regions to all parts of the country. The shipment from Hazleton one day last week was 14,000 quarts.—Raftsman's Journal.

PICKED UP IN LOBBIES

Brook Excursion Records.

More Sunday excursionists were on the move on the local railroads yesterday than on any other Sunday so far this summer. The attractions were crowded all day with people going to or returning from the railroads that circumscribe and by others who were arriving on the trains from points within 100 miles of Pittsburgh. All records for excursion loading and passengers were broken. At the Baltimore & Ohio station last night the arrivals and departures were resumed up and it was found that over 2,000 people had passed through the gates during the day. One train brought 700 people from Hockingport, Wheeling and Grafton, West Virginia, while another brought 400 people to Pittsburgh from Morgantown, W. Va., and Uniontown, Pa. The trains from Cumberland, Md., brought in 700 people. Wheeling, W. Va., fell within 50 used from Pittsburgh to Wheeling. The excursion trains to Ohio Pyle carried 10 coaches and 500 passengers. The Wabash railroad ran the largest excursion to Wheeling that the road has handled so far this summer, and the Pittsburgh also took a large number of excursionists to the same city. The Pennsylvania railroad and the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie each ran two trains from this city to Erie, where the Pennsylvania national guard is in camp.

Bishop to Be Arbitrator.

Bishop W. F. Berrick of the African Methodist Episcopal church, who has jurisdiction over all the churches of his denomination in the eastern section of the United States, the West Indies and South Africa, passed through Pittsburgh last night on his way to New York. At the Union station Bishop Berrick said he is going to New York at the request of Bishop W. H. Arnett, who has asked him to arbitrate a dispute in the Bethel A. M. E. church in that city. Bishop Berrick will discuss have been made against the pastor of the church, and Bishop Arnett wants him to resign, but the congregation refuses to allow the pastor to leave. Bishop Berrick has just returned from Bermuda and stated the inhabitants of the island have recently suffered a severe blow, as the English government has withdrawn its troops and is reducing its fortifications on the island. The people of Bermuda have supported the troops and feels with garden truck and the financial loss is heavy. The natives who were employed by the soldiers are also thrown out of work and their chief object of employment is the docks is overcrowded with workmen. The bishop intends to visit the West Indies in November. On his way east he stopped at the Palm Theological seminary at Wilberforce, O., to attend a meeting of the A. M. E. Bishops, who met to elect a board of directors for the seminary. Prof. Joshua Jacobs of Columbus, O., was elected chairman of the board.

Dog Causes Excitement.

The prance of a pet dog almost caused Wood street, near Fourth avenue, to be blockaded late yesterday afternoon. The dog was in the rear seat of a big, red automobile, beside a little girl. While passing the Arcade building the dog sighted another dog on the sidewalk farther down Wood street, and just as the auto, which was running at a good rate of speed, passed the dog the pet in the auto swung off the street and ran to the sidewalk to get acquainted with the other dog. A mix-up took place and the people in search of excitement soon gathered and formed a circle. The prize of the little girl for her dog soon brought the auto to a stop, and the dog was captured by the owner and carried away.

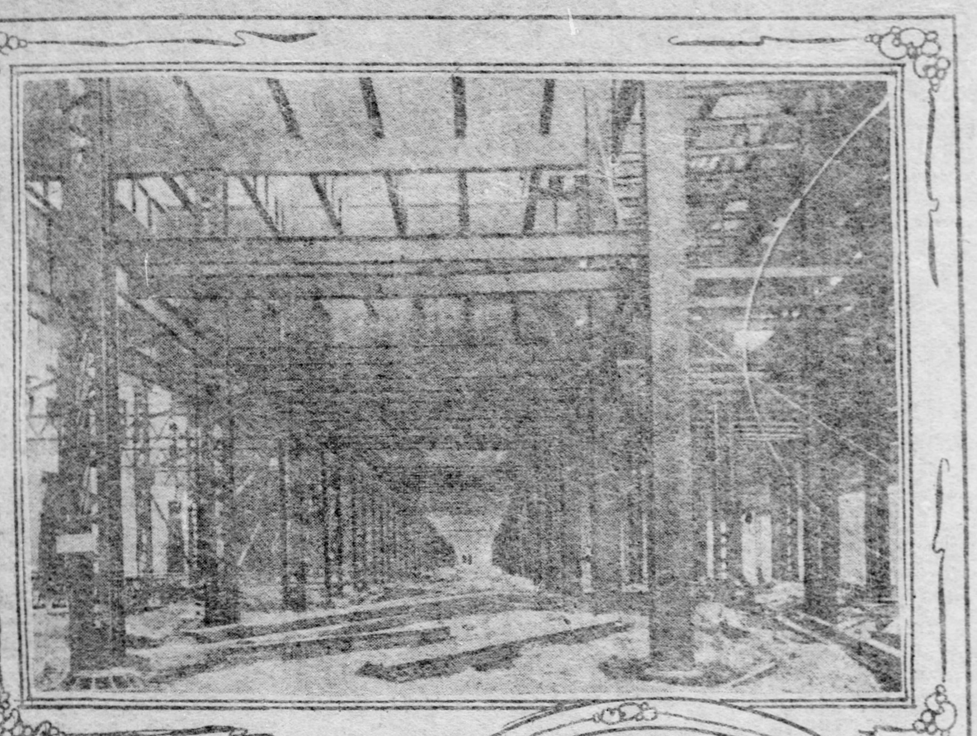
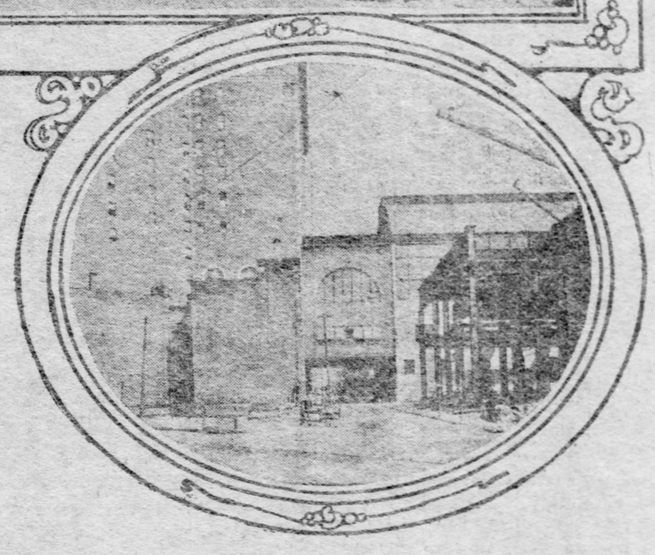
Small Show for the Tailor.

The doctor of a regiment stationed in India received a letter from his tailor, including a long over due account, and concluding with a polite inquiry after the debtor's state of health. The sawbones replied thus: "I have received your lapse critical letter, hoping that I am in a good state of health. Hear, then, what your chances of my living long enough to be able to pay your bill are. I attend assiduously every cholera case in the camp and I am making considerable a special study. I swim every morning in a lake swarming with alligators. At a recent attack on the hill fort, I went with the forlorn hope, and was one of the three who returned unwounded. Tomorrow morning I shall go, unaccompanied and on foot, into the jungle and wait for the man eating tigress as she returns at dawn to her cave and her cubs. If it be she who falls I shall spend my

WABASH'S NEW FREIGHT STATION WILL BE A MONSTER



Looking through one of the long corridors of the Wabash's new freight station from Liberty avenue toward Water street.



At the foot of Fourth avenue, showing the Wabash building and trainshed, two of the city's fire department houses and a part of the new freight station.

WABASH SOON TO HAVE BIG FREIGHT STATION

Structure Going Up Beside Passenger Train Shed and Is Thoroughly Fireproof.

Pittsburgh is being rapidly equipped with a new freight station, the size and facilities of which are a surprise to those not acquainted with the progressive and aggressive plans of the Wabash. The station will be the main one for the Wabash system here, for some time to come at least. It stands side by side with the passenger trainshed and extends from Fourth avenue to First avenue. In width it extends from the passenger trainshed to Redoubt alley.

The big structure is to be entirely of fireproof construction. The massive steel beams rest on concrete bases and floors, roof and interior work will all be built of materials which most surely resist fire. All that is modern in freight station construction has been adopted for the new building.

The freight tracks will run from the north end of the Monongahela bridge, precisely as the passenger tracks now run. The passenger tracks curve to the east and the freight tracks will turn to the west as they leave the bridge.

Freight will reach the street level in huge elevators, running up beside the tracks and allowing the boxes, etc., to be lowered to wagons in the avenues below. The elevators will be sufficient in number and of large enough capacity to handle a great volume of business. A fair business is now being handled at the temporary freight station.

QUART OF WHISKY GETS TWO LADS INTO TROUBLE

Two boys, aged 12, whose names the police withheld, were arrested in Summerhill grove, Allegheny, last evening for drunkenness. Both lads were helplessly intoxicated when picked up. According to their story they started out yesterday morning with two girls and a big basket to have a picnic. The girls knew nothing of the quart of whisky the boys put into the basket, and when it was produced the girls returned home. The boys' parents were told and the police notified. The lads were given a scare and were turned out last night after they had slept it off.

SENATOR CLARK HAS MADE A GOOD RALLY

He Passes a Fairly Comfortable Night, and His Condition Shows Improvement.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, July 16.—United States Senator William A. Clark of Montana continues to rally satisfactorily from the operation which he underwent yesterday for the removal of an abscess of the brain. The strength which brought him through a fairly comfortable night continued throughout the day. Tonight the physicians in attendance said the senator's condition was such as was to be expected following so delicate and grave an operation.

Dr. James F. McKernon, who performed the operation, called at the senator's apartments this morning and later expressed himself as satisfied with the senator's condition. At 9:30 o'clock Dr. McKernon left the house, saying he would not return before evening unless something unexpected developed. As the ear specialist did not again visit the Clark apartments until tonight, it is taken to indicate the progress of recovery was uninterrupted.

While the information made public is all in favor of the patient, the gravity of the senator's condition is not withheld from the family. They are aware it will be at least four days before his ultimate safety can be assured. Mrs. Clark, who is in Paris, has been advised of the exact condition of the senator in a cablogram sent her today. It is not expected any change will be made in Mrs. Clark's plans abroad or that she will leave before next Friday, when she will be told the exact status resultant from the operation.

The senator's temperature this morning was 99. It is learned it did not rise above this point during the day, which is considered a favorable indication. This morning he said that he was very glad the operation was over and that he need no longer look forward to it.

PALATABLE BEVERAGES ARE AMONG THE SPOILS

Rare Chianti, Husky Hennessey and Some Champagne Trophies of Speakeasy Raid.

Rare old wine of foreign vintage, a husky keg of just as husky Hennessey brandy, a row of dust covered barrels filled with what is said to be good whisky, and several cases of "the grape" were what the police dug out of the cellar of an ordinary looking house in Chatham street yesterday afternoon. The house was No. 48, and the officers say it was the best stocked speakeasy that has fallen under the eyes of the authorities for many a day.

The raid which brought this resort to grief was conducted by Capt. Lawrence Bartley, Special Officer John Morgan and a squad of officers. The place was conducted by Ansell and A. Bonanta, Italians, and it is said the house was a favorite trysting spot for their countrymen. Chief among the liquors culled from the vaults were a number of bottles of Chianti wine, a favorite beverage with Italians. The entire lot was confiscated.

There was a goodly number of representatives of "Sunny Italy" present when the officers intruded. In addition to the proprietors an even dozen of guests were taken to Central station. All, apparently, have prospered since coming to America, for without exception they were able to leave forfeits for their appearance at the hearing this morning.

The raid on Chatham street was but one of a number conducted by the police during the day. A squad of officers entered the house of Lizzie Perkins, 651 Second avenue, during the morning, and gathered in Miss Perkins and a quartet of friends. Among the latter were Lezar Denashan of Cornopolis, and David Waugh. They are both white, but Miss Perkins is of the opposite color. Against the men a charge of disorderly conduct was preferred. When the police entered the house Waugh was pretty nearly "down and out." He was bleeding from wounds about the head, and someone vouchsafed the information that Denashan had "caressed" him with a beer bottle. It was necessary to take Waugh first to the Homeopathic hospital before the journey was continued to the police station.

George Harris, Martin Riley, John B. McClafferty and John Ramsey, filled with sporting blood, clustered about the corner at Fourth street and Duquesne way, Sunday morning and began to "toss the bones." The click of the dice attracted the attention of officers and the players fell into the net just as Riley was about to rake in a big pot.

For the third time within a few weeks Magistrate Abernathey was yesterday compelled to heavily fine Ollie Maynard for running a disorderly house at 208 Craig street, Allegheny. The house was raided during the early morning hours, Miss Maynard, two other women and three men being secured. Miss Maynard was fined $100 and costs and the others $10 and costs.

WILL NEVER AGAIN BUILD SHIP UNDER AMERICAN FLAG

James J. Hill Talks Against the Panama Canal and Says We Have No Protecting Laws for a Merchant Marine.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

LENOX, MASS., July 16.—"We dilly-daily with South American trade and are trying to build a Panama canal. What good will come of it? We have not the ships, and freight rates to the east are against it. We have not the protecting laws for a merchant marine. I myself have recognized that condition, and shall certainly never again build a ship under the American flag."

These were the words of James J. Hill in an interview today. Mr. Hill is at the beautiful home of his son, in the Berkshire hills, half way between Lenox and Stockbridge. Tonight he left for New York to take up the threads of his affairs abandoned several weeks ago, when he started on his annual trip to Labrador.

"I see no dangerous shoals ahead in the business and financial situation here, so I look for any sort of a business boom," he said. "The country ought to be thankful if business moves along in its present volume. What is needed the country over is a great awakening, a sort of revival in its business methods, in domestic and foreign trade and a different and higher commercial standard or moral tone. This great awakening will have to come before we are a world power.

"There is much to say on the general conditions of business. There are many favorable elements in the prospect, and still more unfavorable features to be reckoned with in the general estimate. We are in a period of demagoguery which breeds 'pull,' and 'pull' in turn promotes graft. There are too many quack political theories which clash with sound business. We are a nation of 80,000,000 people or more, working and developing rich natural resources. I complain, however, that we are making a poor job of it from a trade and business point of view. The country is richer far than England or Germany, and yet the fruits of trading are exceedingly small compared with what they ought to be. It is all very well to be content to swap jack knives with one another, but what is that but taking money out of one pocket and putting it in another?"

The Equitable disclosures Mr. Hill regards as symptomatic of the period.

"I won't pass judgment on Equitable affairs," he said. "I will say this, however, that insurance business will shrink, and shrink to nothing unless there comes a complete change; in other words, an awakening in the methods of doing insurance business."

Mr. Hill reverted to his pet theory and his great hobby—the opening of the eastern markets to the United States. He argued that wealth and commercial supremacy came from the sale of goods to foreign countries, and that our merchants and manufacturers were faring badly in competition with other leading commercial nations, chiefly on account of restrictive governmental and individual influences and their own negligence.

Incidentally, Mr. Hill stated that there was no truth in the current Wall street report that a big script dividend was about to be paid on the stocks of his companies. One of Mr. Hill's epigrams in showing the lack of aggressiveness of American merchants and manufacturers in entering the world trade was as follows:

"The world today is smaller than the United States after the civil war. Telephone, telegraph and cable and the railroads have made it smaller."

A maker of fine Dress Ginghams copied seersucker stripes—made them of the finest and softest yarns that go into his finest goods—believing for useful shirtwaist suits they would have a great sale—but they didn't—at a quarter a yard.

Today this surplus, about 1,500 yards, at 10c.

At the price nothing in fine Dress Cotton Goods for women or children—that ever came out of a loom—ever emptied out of Boggs & Buhl's shelves.

CENTER OF ART IS PITTSBURGH

So Declares Artist Fronkes, Who Painted Papal Secretary of State Merry Del Val.

HE LAUDS OUR EXHIBITIONS

Maurice Fronkes, the well-known New York artist, who gained international distinction last fall by being commissioned to paint the portrait of Cardinal Merry Del Val, the papal secretary of state, and who is the first American artist having a canvas hanging in the vatican, is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Baer at their home, 136 Lincoln avenue, Bellevue.

Mr. Fronkes, who is but 33 years of age, is making his first visit to this city, and declares himself as being most agreeably surprised in finding so much evidence of art and culture in a community so rife with industry and commercialism.

"Your art exhibitions," he said, "have reached a point where they are being considered of international import. Your last exhibition was watched and commented upon with interest in Paris, and the fact that the great European masters not only contribute but act as jurors, is not only unusual but confirms the great prestige which these exhibitions have attained. Your orchestra, too, is recognized both in the east and abroad as being among the great artistic organizations of the world."

Work Attracts Attention.

Mr. Fronkes' account of his experience in painting the portrait of the papal secretary of state is of unusual interest. Last September, while in Rome studying the Italian masters, one of the prelates of the vatican viewed the work of Mr. Fronkes with interest, and informed the secretary of state that a young American artist studying in Rome gave evidence of marked ability, and suggested that his reverence sit for him for a portrait.

Cardinal Merry Del Val agreed to give the artist an audience, which led to the commission to execute the portrait. Mr. Fronkes spent one month at the vatican, finishing the portrait in the papal throne room in the Castle Gondolfo, the ancient summer home of the popes, situated 17 miles from the vatican. The vatican can clearly be seen from the castle throne room, but the pope never ventures from out of sight of St. Peter's.

It was while Cardinal Del Val was posing for the portrait that the controversy between the vatican and France arose, and some of the most important sessions of the cardinals were held in the throne room while the American artist sat in their midst sketching the secretary of state.

Contributes to Next Exhibition.

Mr. Fronkes states that all the cardinals showed great interest in the progress of the work, and that all were men capable of art criticism. He described Cardinal Del Val as being a man of but 40 years of age, and of most genial and kindly disposition. He declares him to be a man of great magnetism, and though his duties during the controversy with France were both arduous and wearing, his recuperative powers were wonderful and his temperament always congenial.

Mr. Fronkes has been commissioned to paint members of several leading Pittsburgh families, and will return some time during the fall. He will also be a contributor at the next art exhibition.

CARDINAL MERRY DEL VAL.

Present papal secretary of state, from only painting by an American artist ever hung in the vatican at Rome, executed by Maurice Fronkes.

Arrangements have been completed to hold funeral services over the remains of Attorney John Lindsay McCutcheon, who died early yesterday morning, as reported in The Gazette, at the family home, 143 Homewood avenue, Homewood, Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. WOOS PHILADELPHIA WIDOW AT POINT OF A REVOLVER

Woman Is Rescued by Police and Man Arrested as He Is Taking Her Away to Marry Him. Alleged Threat of Murder.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—The story of a strange wooing was told in the Central police station today by Mrs. Helen Moak of 2027 North Thirteenth street, who accused Charles H. Scott with threatening to murder her. Scott is 39 years old and a traveling salesman, well known for years "on the road." Mrs. Moak is a widow of 50, with hair streaked with gray.

At daybreak Guard Hughes saw Scott and the woman at the Filbert street entrance of the city hall. "Don't shoot me" he heard the woman say. Hughes approached the couple and the woman appealed to him for protection, saying that Scott intended to take her life. Hughes placed the man under arrest and on searching him found a loaded revolver and a pocket full of cartridges.

When Scott was arraigned before Magistrate Kochersperger, Mrs. Moak told in a hysterical manner of the night of terror she said she had passed walking the streets with him and begging him to give up his plan of shooting her if she did not marry him.

She testified that six weeks ago Scott engaged board at her house and began to pay her marked attentions. She informed him that she was considering an offer of marriage with a wealthy man, a member, she told the magistrate, of the Manufacturers' club and Union league. Late last night, the woman testified, Scott forced an entrance to her room. He held a revolver in his hand.

"I want you, Helen," Mrs. Moak testified he exclaimed, "and if I don't have you no one else will."

Mrs. Moak fled from the house. She said that she stood on a street corner for three hours, dreading to return. When she went back, she said, Scott and the revolver were waiting for her. Mrs. Moak said that she was forced to agree to go away with him, and together they came downtown. They walked about the streets until daylight, and when Guard Hughes interfered, she testified, Scott was taking her to Broad street station to go to New York to be married.

Mrs. Moak was worn out by the excitement, and as she finished giving her testimony she became hysterical. After she recovered Mrs. Moak said that she did not desire to have Scott put in prison, but wanted him to leave the city. The magistrate held him in $800 bail.

The building will be completed in about a month. A $4,000 Carnegie organ is still to be moved from the old building in Sixth street, Braddock. The old structure was sold to the Italian Roman Catholic congregation of Braddock.

DECLARES THAT RED DEVILS ARE MURDEROUS WEAPONS

Coroner Armstrong Has a Scheme to Get Possession of an Automobile.

Coroner Joseph G. Armstrong wants an automobile and has a scheme for securing a "red devil." He has seen several machines which he expects to have before long.

The coroner has been reading up on criminal law. Among other things he discovered a provision dealing with "murderous weapons." An instrument used in the taking of life comes under this head and it becomes the property of the coroner. The coroner figures it will be only a question of time until some reckless chauffeur collides with the "murderous weapon" provision of the law. When he does the coroner will take the machine. A number of his friends have heard of his interpretation of the act and Mr. Armstrong is loaded with applications for automobiles. At least one man really takes the coroner seriously in this matter, and expects to get a "red devil."

MRS. WILSON MAY RECOVER.

Woman Who Escapes from Asylum and Shoots Herself Has a Chance to Live.

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., July 16.—The physicians at the Bridgeport hospital today again probed for the bullet which nearly ended the life of Mrs. Janet L. Wilson, the former inmate of the Hudson River hospital for the insane at Poughkeepsie, who attempted suicide in the Riverview hotel, Milford, last night, but were unable to find it. The bullet went through the chest wall of the left side and seemingly dropped down to the lung cavity where it lodged. Mrs. Wilson's condition is slightly improved and she may recover.

Walter Langdon, who has been the companion of Mrs. Wilson since she escaped from the New York institution on July 7, is still here and was by the patient's bedside nearly all day. Although word was sent to former Congressman Philip P. Lowe of New York, the father of Mrs. Wilson, he has not arrived here. No friends or relatives of either Mrs. Wilson or Langdon called at the institution today.

Princeton students acted as pallbearers and the funeral was largely attended.

Marron Talks of Allegheny Graft.

Many people stood outside on the pavement listening through the open windows. Mr. Marron's subject was "Municipal Misgovernment," and dealt largely with the Allegheny graft cases and conditions in that city.

PUDDLERS THREATEN TO LEAVE THE AMALGAMATED

Hold Meeting at Which the Organization of New Union Is Planned if the Strike Is Not Called Off.

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 16.—Seventy-two puddlers from the different plants of the valley met this afternoon and discussed breaking away from the Amalgamated association. It is promised steps will be taken in the coming week to accomplish this.

The men who were present not only included the strikers from the American steel hoop plants, but also puddlers from the Republic Iron and Steel Company and other union concerns. Speeches were made in favor of leaving the association to form one of their own.

The officials of the Amalgamated will receive one more chance to allow the puddlers of the steel hoop company to return to work. It was the decision of the meeting that a communication be sent to the officials giving them a chance to call off the strike so far as the puddlers are concerned.

The puddlers of the union plants of the valley are up in arms because three-turn days are allowed in order to give the strikers work. They claim the Amalgamated rule is being violated, which requires five heats shall be made to a turn, and assert they cannot make living wages under the present system. A committee was appointed at the meeting, which will draft plans for the formation of the new puddlers' organization if the strike is not called off.

LIKE BIG FLOCK OF SHEEP THOUSANDS RUSH FROM PARK

One thing has been definitely settled on by the management of Luna park. The next band attraction winding up an evening's program with "Home, Sweet Home," or "Auld Lang Syne" will be sued for damages, and, to block any such untoward happening as the playing of either of these airs, the director of every band appearing at Luna during the balance of the season will be warned not to think of blowing even a single bar of the two old favorites. Something happened Saturday night that led to this decision being made. Frederick Ingersoll, with a couple of friends, was standing on the midway landing of the grand entrance staircase leading down into the park. He was looking with pardonable pride over the great mob of people—there were between 20,000 and 25,000 well-dressed amusement seekers there that evening—for whose entertainment his brain and nerve had furnished a diversion such as Pittsburgh has never before had, when there was a sudden movement of the great throng.

Before one could inquire what had happened the great mass of people headed for the exit. The rush to get out was something remarkable. From all portions of the park, viewed from the elevated point on which Mr. Ingersoll and his friends were standing, people could be seen hurrying for the street. The mob poured up the grand staircase in a mighty torrent that all but took those who stood still for a second to watch the strange sight off their feet.

It was just 11 o'clock, and a more perfect night Luna is not likely to have this season. There was a full moon riding high in the heavens, it was not too warm, and the crowd itself was one of the most interesting things to watch and be a part of ever assembled anywhere. There had been an interesting out-of-door performance, and the band had played one or two selections following that feature. There was nothing to alarm anyone, and Mr. Ingersoll was greatly perplexed. He was disappointed, too, for the crowd was one well supplied with money, and had been liberal in its patronage of everything in the park. "What can have happened?" he asked over and over again, as he breasted the gigantic stream of people now rushing past him. "You ought to go and choke off that band," said one of his friends. "Why?" asked Mr. Ingersoll. "Why, just listen to what they are playing," was the answer. The musicians were blowing "Auld Lang Syne" with all their might and main, and nearly every other pretty girl, as she rushed out, was humming the air. "Too bad that it's time for the good-night piece," one was heard to say, as she went by, and it was that remark that gave the tip to Mr. Ingersoll's friend, who, in turn, gave it to him.

"Never again," said Mr. Ingersoll, when it dawned on him that the music was driving the people out of the brilliant resort instead of holding them there.

The rush well illustrated how like a flock of sheep a great crowd behaves. Probably not more than 10 per cent of the thousands who made a rush to get out of the place knew why they were leaving. The few who interpreted the music of the band as the signal for the closing of the park hurriedly started to get a seat in the street cars, and the others, seeing them rush, started to rush after them, without knowing why they did so. Inside of 20 minutes all of those thousands of people were out of the park and the place was deserted a full half hour before the time for closing. The rush was a somewhat embarrassing one for the street car people, coming in the sudden manner it did.

NEW YORK, July 16.—That Manager Clarke and President Dreyfuss look forward to the three remaining games to be played with the Giants with as much anxiety as if the championship depended on them, there can be no doubt. Capt. Clarke, it is said, had two or three good offers to play exhibition games with semi-professional clubs around New York today, but refused them all, notwithstanding the good financial inducements offered by the different managers, preferring to give the players the benefit of a day's break in the schedule. The Pirates are always a good attraction in exhibition games. On their last eastern trip they played an exhibition game on Sunday with the strong Hoboken semi-professional club before a record crowd. But whatever financial gain there may be in these games, President Dreyfuss was only too glad to make the sacrifice for the benefit of the players.

The Pirates on former visits for years always stopped at the Marlborough hotel, Manhattan, but so well pleased are they with their new quarters at the St. George hotel on Columbia Heights, Brooklyn, that they have decided to remain there during the remainder of the New York series.

Beaumont's knee is still bothering him some, just enough to keep him out of the game, unless it should be absolutely necessary to send him in. Leach will continue to share the fielding honors with Clarke and Clymer. Tommy, however, is in good shape and could get back in the game regular at any moment.

The Pirates have shown a big improvement in their stick work in the last few days, Clymer showing up especially strong in this department. He averaged over two hits to a game during the Brooklyn series and looks as if he would repeat that record in New York.

"Our stick work, and it is the kind that counts, too," said Manager Clarke, "during the last few days is a good example of what the Pittsburghers may expect from this out. The Hanlonites, as usual, made us extend ourselves, but when the necessary hit was needed it was forthcoming, no matter who was called upon to do the trick."

DON'T DO IT AGAIN.

President Pulliam Exonerates Joe Kelly, but Gives Him a Warning.

NEW YORK, July 16.—(Special.)—President Pulliam of the National league this morning announced his decision in the charges preferred by Umpire Bauswine against Capt. Joe Kelley of the Cincinnati team, for using profane language on the ball field at Pittsburgh on July 3 toward him. Pulliam finds Kelley not guilty, but warns the Cincinnati manager that he has been a persistent offender against discipline and order on the ball field, and any further complaint of this character received against him will be severely dealt with. Pulliam's decision is as follows:

"In the matter of charges preferred by Umpire Bauswine against Capt. Kelley of the Cincinnati team, it appears that Kelley in his sworn affidavit by way of explanation that what he said to the umpire was in the nature of a joke, inasmuch as the occurrence took place after the game of ball was over. I am disposed to give Kelley the benefit of the doubt, notwithstanding that he has been a most persistent offender against discipline and order on the ball field. I therefore dismiss the complaint, but in doing so I will state that Mr. Kelley is treading on dangerous ground and if he persists in this form of airy persiflage as directed to the umpire, the joke will be on him."

COMISKEY IS LONGING FOR THE CHAMPIONSHIP

President of White Socks Thinks His Team Will Land the Pennant in the American League.

Writing from Chicago Tim Murnane says: "Charles Comiskey, president of the Chicago Americans, not old, but gray and big, since passing up the playing end of the game, was looking at the practice of Boston and his own boys from a line seat under the grandstand last week, when a stranger to him turned and asked: "'Mr. Comiskey, do you think your boys can win the championship?'

"Without turning his head from the field, he answered promptly:

"'I never had a club yet that I didn't think would win the championship.'

"The gray hairs on the old chief's head stood for disappointment in baseball, for while Comiskey is among the first six leaders of pennant winners he has missed the mark 14 out of the last 16 attempts. A fine baseball general, liberal and well liked, Comiskey has one ambition, and that is to win the American league championship once more. Last season his team was in the running until September, when one or two of his best players went bad with injuries, and his team went out in a night. This season the team is playing very smooth baseball. In fact, I know of no ball team playing the game as smoothly as the White Socks. The championship bee is buzzing in their bonnets, and every man is doing a thinking part as well as Comiskey. The Socks have by all odds the finest infield playing the game today.

"George Davis, with his 15 years of major league experience, has something on all other shortstops. He has developed Tannehill into a second Collins or Bradley, and made Dundon one of the cleverest bagmen in the business, while Donahue has a little something on all the first basemen of the present time. There are no Fatty Felix players on the Chicago team, and Comiskey has great reason to feel well satisfied with his outfit winning the championship."

CREW FOR GERMANY.

American Scullers Will Endeavor to Land the Honors in That Country.

NEW YORK, July 16.—(Special.)—James Pilkington, president of the National association of Amateur Oarsmen, who has been appointed manager of the Metropolitan crew of scullers which is to compete at Baltimore in August in the First City against City Senior Octopede race, announced today that a movement is on foot to send an eight oared shell crew to Germany next year. Pilkington explained that the Germans have been liberal supporters of American regattas in the past, and that it is only fair the United States should send a representative crew to compete for the next cup of the kaiser.

Pilkington said of the project:

"The idea is to send the best crew to be found in America, independent of whether such crew comes from this city or a smaller rowing center. Germany has never failed to remember us in a big regatta, and it is proposed that we return her many kindnesses. The sending of Mulcahy and Varley, the Atalanta Boat club senior double scull crew, over to compete in the Hamburg races next week is simply the beginning of a bigger invasion next year.

"It must not be assumed that we can send a poor crew to Germany and win. The Germans are great oarsmen, and it is no uncommon thing to find fully a dozen professional trainers and coachers from England in Germany each rowing season. The German oarsmen advance rapidly, and we must have a good crew to send over or none at all."

AGAINST SYNDICATE BALL.

Garry Herrmann Does Not Want the Quaker City Club.

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—(Special.)—President Herrmann of the Cincinnati club, who was here yesterday and left for his home last night, emphatically denied the story sent out from Cincinnati to the effect that he, in conjunction with George B. Cox, had purchased a controlling interest in the Philadelphia club. "We have not done so, nor have we any intention of doing so," said the Red chief.

"I have no idea of increasing my holdings in the club here. I am not in favor of syndicate ball and should never be mixed up in any deal to take away the control of this club here from the gentlemen of Philadelphia who now own it. I don't know where the story originated, but it is absolutely untrue."

North End did not play Saturday, as the De Haven A. C. failed to put in their appearance, and a large crowd was disappointed. G. D. Hammer has resigned as manager. North End wants games with 17 to 18-year-old teams. July 22 is open. Address J. L. Thompson, 76 Woods Run avenue, Allegheny.

The management of the Irving A. C. wishes to enter a protest in regard to the game with West Park A. C. Two runs, which would have placed them in the lead, were not allowed by the umpire. The umpire, being a "home man," was greatly in sympathy with West Park. Irving, rather than leave the field, played on, the score being 10 to 9 in West Park's favor, as the umpire saw it.

THE BUSY FIGHTERS ARE PREPARING FOR LIVELY WORK

Harry Scraggs is Hot After Joe Lipman, an Ex-Fighter Who Has Made a Barrel of Money.

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

BALTIMORE, July 16.—Boxing is pretty dull locally, but from the gossip extant there will be a lively awakening in the autumn.

The return of Joe Tipman has got Harry Scroggs to going again, and he says he will not rest until Tipman makes a match with him, as he says Joe promised him his first engagement upon his return from England. He is here now, says Harry, now let him talk business.

Scroggs says his new manager, Mr. Reis, is ready to post a forfeit of any sum to bind the match. Harry and his manager have gone to Philadelphia to negotiate a match with Young Erne.

Philadelphia Jack O'Brien and Jack (Twin) Sullivan have been matched to engage in another 20-round bout at Skagway, Alaska, on August 8. They fought at Dawson City, Alaska, on the night of July 4.

The men fought for a guaranteed purse of $6,000, with the privilege of taking 60 per cent of the gross receipts. As there was a trifle over $20,000 taken in at the door, the fighters received $6,000 each.

It is now said to be unlikely that either Kid Herman, the Chicago featherweight, or Young Corbett will have an opportunity to meet Abe Attel until some time in the fall. Just when it looked as though a fight would be arranged Attell announced that he intended to take a trip to Europe and engage some of the English boxers. Attell's excuse for calling off his match with Corbett and refusing to meet Herman is that there would not be enough money in it for him. Corbett says that he is ready to fight Attell before one of the Philadelphia clubs, and although there may not be so much money in the fight as there would be in a limited-round bout in San Francisco, there is no doubt that the little fellows would draw as much as Attell can reap in England, where boxing is no longer the money-getter it was a few years ago.

Joseph Dunfee of Syracuse was one of the best-known middleweights in the country about six years ago. He met such men as Dan Creedon, Tommy Ryan, Billy McCarthy, Shadow Maher and a few other men of lesser renown. He never made any money at the fighting game for the reason that he generally lost the decision, but today Mr. Joseph Dunfee is worth not far from $100,000. He still lives in Syracuse. He made the money in the contracting business. The case of a former pugilist making big money in any other business after deserting the ring is exceedingly rare. The fact is that today there is not a retired pugilist in the country who has made a fortune in a legitimate business.

LANCASTER IS BEATEN.

Mt. Vernon Bunched Hits and They Bring the Runs.

LANCASTER, O., July 16.—(Special.)—Mt. Vernon defeated Lancaster here today in a game abounding in sensational plays and superb pitching. The locals were unable to hit Geyer consecutively after the first inning. Compton allowed but one hit for seven innings and then weakened, and three singles and a double allowed three runs to score. The locals had two men on bases and two out in the ninth, with a good chance to score, but a close decision was rendered against them on Beverly's grounder and they were out. Score:

AN ENGLISH DECISION IMPORTANT TO GOLFERS

Patent on Rubber Cored Balls Is Upset—Enormous Sum Spent Will Be Reduced.

PHILADELPHIA, July 16.—It is not too much to say that nothing that has happened in the golf world for the last two years can compare in importance or in interest with the decision which was given in the English chancery division by Justice Buckley in the great Haskell vs. Kite case. According to this judgment the Haskell patent, which has held the field for the past seven years, has been upset, and there is no longer any monopoly in the manufacture of rubber-cored golf balls.

More than merely interesting as this matter is to the golfer, it should have excited the attention of the general public on account of the magnitude of the issue involved, but for some unexplainable reason appears to have been almost universally overlooked.

Golf balls cost anything from 25 to 50 cents each at present, and perhaps in these days of sunshine and long grass the player who has lost three of them at 50 cents each in the course of his two rounds may sometimes be inclined to fancy that a pretty large sum of money must be spent annually by the world's golfers in these indispensable adjuncts of the game.

Usually the reflection ends at this point; if it were carried farther it would become more interesting. Some little time ago a most careful statistician made an exhaustive calculation, with the result that it was discovered that at a low estimate the sum of $28,125,000 was spent annually by the golfing public of the world in the purchase of rubber-cored balls.

A monopoly for the manufacture of these was therefore very obviously worth having, and the upsetting of the patent which controlled their manufacture for the past few years must be accounted a most momentous matter. It affects every man who plays golf, and in the long run it will probably mean an average of $10 or $15 a year in the pockets of each of them.

A variety of reflections will occur to each thoughtful player on the result of the action. In the first place, to the majority it probably came as somewhat of a surprise, chiefly because of the assumption that there must be something very solid in a patent that has stood for seven years, during which time its proprietors have exacted many thousands of dollars in royalties from other firms who desired to make something like the same thing. But Justice Buckley's judgment, that quite evidently of a man who plays much golf himself, was remarkably lucid and convincing. As it stands, it is a most interesting treatise on the history of an important phase of the game.

However, so far from the judgment being unexpected in the innermost circles, it was learned, on what seemed to be excellent authority, that invitations were sent out to a banquet which was to be given immediately after the case was ended by certain parties very closely interested.

It is no use pretending that the verdict is not immensely popular in the golf world. There may be some momentary sympathy for the firm without whose assistance the rubber-cored ball might not even yet have become a marketable commodity, but after all they have done pretty well by enjoying for so many years a patent to which evidently they had no right. Golfers will feel grateful to the plucky defendants who fought the would-be monopolists and won such a remarkable victory.

Alliance Wins in the Ninth.

	R.	H.	E.
Beach Parks	0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0 0—0	4	1

TWO GOOD RING BATTLES ON TAP

Britt and Sullivan and Ryan and Peterson Will Settle Affairs This Week.

JEFFRIES LIKES PETERSON

[SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE GAZETTE.]

CHICAGO, July 16.—Jimmy Britt and "Kid" Sullivan of Baltimore will furnish the next pugilistic attraction at San Francisco. Probably there has been no fight in which Britt has participated in during his advent into the fistic limelight in which so little interest has been taken. There is a general disposition among the sporting world to regard the contest, first, as a poor substitute for the Britt-Nelson affair, originally scheduled for this month, and second, either as a "set-up" for Britt or as a bad-looking proposition from any standpoint.

Of course Sullivan is by no means a novice at the fighting game; he has several creditable performances to his credit around Baltimore, whence he hails, but his experience has been mainly confined to the short-distance affairs customary in the east, and he can hardly be considered in Britt's class on past performances. Britt, however, is reported to be training as hard as ever he did, bearing in mind, it is said, that the easterner is possessed of a sledge-hammer punch that will wind up things in a hurry if he once connects.

If the Britt-Sullivan bout, for any reason, leaves a bad taste in one's mouth, the fight at Colma, Cal., the day following will go far toward eradicating it. This battle will have Buddy Ryan and George Peterson as participants and looks like the real goods from this distance.

Ryan claims to be the American welterweight champion, while Peterson lays title to the English honors in that class, thus making the battle virtually a contest for the world's welterweight championship. Peterson is almost unknown in this country, but so good a judge as Jim Jeffries picks him to win. Jeffries, in sizing up the merits of the two men, said:

"I think Peterson has in him the making of a good fighter. I consider him far more clever as a boxer than Ryan and he is also a hard hitter with good wallop. Ryan has never been up from the time he starts in, but has a lot more strength than science and Peterson should be clever enough to keep away from his hard wallops."

The irrepressible Mike Schreck will not down. Here's the latest from his manager, Billy Hogan, who, like Mike, returned here a few days ago: "I have a forfeit of $1,000 up now in possession of Charles Essig to fight any heavyweight in the country, Bob Fitzsimmons and Marvin Hart preferred. I claim heavyweight championship for Schreck on the grounds that Fitzsimmons forfeited to him. Here is some more dope to show that Schreck is entitled to the honors as much as any other heavyweight:

"Schreck is the only man that ever put George Gardner to the mat. Gardner stopped Root several times and neither Hart, Fitz nor Root could stop Gardner. Now Schreck is the only man to accomplish it and now where does Hart stand?"

Which recalls the "dope" figured out by a facetious sporting writer not long ago which made Frankie Neil a legitimate contestant for heavyweight honors against Jeffries. This ingenious scribe cited that Neil had once fought a draw with Eddie Hanlon, who beat Young Corbett, who whipped Terry McGovern, who beat Joe Gans, who drew with Joe Walcott, who knocked out Joe Choynski, who has a draw with Jeffries to his credit. So much for pugilistic "form." And Hogan's, without going into particulars, is just about as misleading. It is known to several Chicagoans that within the past six or eight months, while training here, Jack Root knocked out Schreck on more than one occasion and in general battered him around about as he pleased. Mike will hardly do as a world's champion, but he is a pretty tough proposition, at that.

TRETOW WILLING TO TRAIN SEALS

WILL BE FUN FOR CHILDREN

Visitors to the zoological garden in Highland park crowded about the tank in the main building yesterday to see the three sea lions, two companions having been given to the old lion which has been at the zoo for some months. The newcomers and the old resident had no trouble about becoming acquainted. With some animals the process of becoming friends is often accompanied by fighting, but when the two sea lions were put into the tank the occupant already there rushed over to them and gave them a glad greeting. In a few minutes they were engaged in good-natured play.

Head Keeper Ernest Tretow is a famous trainer of animals but has not practiced his profession on any animals now in the zoo, because the quarters are small and there is little space to show off tricks that the animals might acquire, but with the seals it will be different. Sea lions are difficult to train, and that is one inducement to Tretow to try his hand; besides the sight of amphibious animals educated to stunts practiced by trained dry-land beasts is a source of perennial interest to zoo sightseers. The sea lions in the aquarium in New York are a never failing delight to children and adults. Habitues of the aquarium actually hold that education develops many of the sea lions and that the intelligent animals actually study up new tricks and practice them in their few moments of privacy to entertain spectators and gain a few extra morsels of fish from their trainer.

Tricks for the Sea Lions.

It is Tretow's hope that he may be able to induce the sea lions to beat the tambourine, do ground tumbling on the stone coping surrounding their tank, as well as in the water, learn to count at least up to 10, to beg audibly for their food and to do many other interesting little tricks.

Sea lions are great fish eaters and already the fish man who supplies the lone lion at the zoo has been ordered to treble his supply. It is an interesting sight to observe the sea lions feeding. The voracious hunger shown by the carnivora, and the growls and exhibition of unrestrained appetite by when it is accompanied, is not pleasing to many parents, who therefore forbid their children to go to the zoo when the carnivora are being fed, but seals are quieter in their habits and eat their strips of fish with such dainty table manners that children delight to watch them. After awhile, it is believed, dinner time for the sea lions will draw crowds to the zoo, especially as that will be the time when they will be expected to perform the tricks which Tretow will teach them.

A fine cinnamon bear and two raccoons have been presented to the zoo by Mrs. Charles M. Schwab. There is now a den of six cinnamons and one of 10 raccoons. The bear given by Mrs. Schwab is not so large as two specimens now in the zoo, but he is in such splendid condition that he bids fair to outstrip his colleagues in height and girth.

Schenley and the Traction Parks.

Schenley park looks very pretty now. The few flowers are cannas and wild roses, but the shrubs, although bearing few blooms, are of a healthy green and the copious rains have kept the grass fresh and vivid. Usually at this time of year dry weather has begun to leave its brown impress on the lawns. The unsightly knob which covered the mechanical works of the electric fountain has been leveled. Grass seed will be sown on the spot or the ground may be sodded to insure a stand of grass.

The attraction at Calhoun was Mayer's Braddock band, the Colonial Comedy Four and Crimmins and Gore. Bandmaster Mayer had a popular program which was enthusiastically received. The Colonial Comedy four sang, among other up-to-date songs, the latest New York craze, "Hey, Mr. Joshua, Hey." Crimmins and Gore in their original vaudeville act, "What Are the Wild Waves Saying?"

Oakwood park had the Count Androssy orchestra direct from Buda Pesth. They entertained their audiences with wild Hungarian airs, interspersed with American music. The Carter and Blueford company was also on the bill at Oakwood. They sang a number of the latest "Coon" songs. The Knights of Pythias band, Hanley and Velesca, vocalists, and Harry McAvoy, a comedian, were the attraction at Southern park.

An excellent program will be presented at Oakwood park this week. Crimmins and Gore are the headliners. Southern park will have four high-class vaudeville acts and new motion pictures.

Kennywood park had a big day yesterday. Rocereto's concert band gave both the afternoon and the evening concert. Boito's "Mefistofele" was played again yesterday by request. The two big descriptive numbers, "A Trip to Coney Island" and "A Day in Norway," were the cause of much enjoyment. Dare Devil Nelson made two balloon ascensions, one in the afternoon, the other in the evening. All this week the celebrated Valdis Sisters, revolving trapeze and high ladder performers, will be the free attraction.

IMMIGRANTS ABANDON WIVES AND CHILDREN

Charitable Institutions of America Appeal to Foreigners as a Sort of Public Schools.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, July 16.—In the thirty-second annual report of the State Charities association, made to the state board of charities, the immigration problem and immigration evils are prominent subjects. Wife and child desertion is alarmingly on the increase, according to the report, which is compiled by the secretary, Homer Folks, former commissioner of charities.

"This problem touches us deeply," says the report. "In no other country is commitment of children so easy. To our foreign brother it appears quite as a custom of the country. The institution appeals to him as a sort of superior order of public school, where his children not only acquire the language, but are sheltered, fed and clothed at no expense to him. His sense of the paternal relation steadily decreases as the city fathers assume his responsibilities."

Reducing the rate of mortality among the 100 to 200 infants who are abandoned annually in the streets from 55.9 per cent in 1898 to 10.1 per cent during last year, the institution has a plan of placing the little waifs immediately with mothers who have recently lost a child. The high death rate was that of the infant up to the age of 2 years, and the association feels that the success of its plans warrants its continuance. In the last half year this system has reduced the death rate to 8.6 per cent.

Local Pugilist Exhibits His Prowess.

Eddie Zang, a pugilist of considerable local reputation, was arrested in Allegheny Saturday night. F. J. Zang, Tony Zang and Rhiner Josberger were taken into custody with him. It is said Eddie Zang was exhibiting his prowess to a number of admirers who were clustered around a flying horse on Troy Hill. The pugilist was fined $25 and costs or 90 days to the workhouse. The other three were assessed $10 and costs each.

The attention to the settlement of business affairs which death renders necessary is often either impossible or hard for a relative to give. A trust company, if reliable, may in such case prove to be a friend in need. This company claims by its long years of experience and its established reputation for safety and efficiency to be surpassed by none in its ability to serve satisfactorily in every trust capacity. AWAKENING TO HIGHER THINGS

Dr. Bainbridge Tells Chautauqua Audience of the World's Moral Progress.

HELPS FOR THE CHILDREN

[Special Telegram to The Gazette.]

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., July 16.—Dr. William Seaman Bainbridge of New York city gave the first of a series of important lectures here yesterday, the subject being "Helps and Hindrances in the Development of the Child." An extract is as follows:

"All but the confirmed pessimist will admit that the march of men through the years since the dawn of human history has been one of progress. At times very slow, in some periods a zigzag course, again, apparently, retrogressing; yet subsequent generations have seen in perspective that the pathway led always onward. We remember times because of the character stamped upon them by important events. Some centuries seem to be especially laden with a harvest of progress; others are apparently more the seed times.

"With just pride our century feels confident that we live in the greatest age of advance the world has ever seen. In truth, there is much to justify such a belief. The telephone, wireless telegraphy, X-ray, serum therapy, radium, submarine warfare, arbitration between warlike nations, land and sea transportation, and a hundred other illustrations might be cited. But when the final history of our day is written and the juster estimate of relative values taken, I believe that one of even the most beneficent and most worthy of the characteristics of our day will be the great moral uplift, really a moral renaissance, which has shown itself in almost every part of the civilized world.

Awakening to Higher Things.

"It is being felt as a tremendous force, making striking changes all through the great life of today. In dress, in philanthropy, in education, in business methods, in the estimate of our fellows all through the social fabrics, this awakening to higher things is apparent. To sum it all up in a word, the whole movement preaches the doctrine of individual effort to the maxim development of the individual. No longer the race but the individual. The individual is recognized as the essential element; advance of the whole comes only through advance of the individual unit.

"In a multitude of ways expression of this new awakening is seen—the study of the child to see what can best be done to produce the best adult; the increased value put on human life; the effort to help the backward, to make up to the defective what is absent, the training of the feeble-minded.

"The doctrine that all men are created free and equal is a pleasant fallacy, is but a half truth. We want to believe it. We shrink from anything else. We like to believe that all started the race of life on an even footing. We like to offer as an excuse for many seeming defects or apparent shortcomings the belief that the line of deflecting obstacles largely determines the direction and extent of our advance along life's pathway; that the elevation of the individual cannot be measured to an absolute standard, but that the result has nothing whatever to do with heredity.

The Hereditary Taint.

"On the other hand, there are a few who refer with a certain element of pride to hereditary taint as an excuse for their own failures. We conclude that the doctrine that all men are created free and equal applies everywhere and always or nowhere and never. We fail to accept it in its limitations. But nevertheless many an infant enters the world a slave, truly prisoners of poverty—poverty of brain and body, prisoners of vice—many there are among the little ones.

"There is something very real in heredity. There is more, however, in nutrition and environment. With the two last is hope and courage, and it may be a true antidote to the ill effects of heredity. Say to the child, 'You can make of your life what you will; you are free to carve out and mold your character.' But to the parent and teacher urge the fact that heredity must not be forgotten as a definite factor in development; that it must be weighed carefully and recognized as an active, or, at least, as a latent composite force, helpful or detrimental, and that the relative value of these two enter very relevantly into our problem and the child's future."

ASSAULTED BY ROBBER.

Mother and Daughter Are Clubbed Nearly to Death by Thief in Their Summer Home—He Is Caught.

CLAYTON, N. Y., July 16.—Mrs. Fanny Harners and her daughter Ida, 18 years old, of Syracuse, N. Y., who are wealthy summer residents of Grenelf Island park, were brutally assaulted last night by a burglar, who entered the sleeping apartments of the daughter to steal a quantity of diamond jewelry kept in the room.

Miss Harners, aroused by the intruder, started to give an alarm, but was clubbed into unconsciousness. The robber struck down Mrs. Harners, who came to the rescue. Neighbors surrounded the house, capturing a man who proved to be Albert Nuley of Fishers Landing, near Thousand Island park. Both victims are in a critical condition.

Fall from Porch Kills Him.

LATROBE, PA., July 16.—(Special.)—George Zillner of Derry township was instantly killed last night by falling from his front porch eight feet to the ground. He was 47 years old.

NEWS OF HER HUSBAND IS NOT OF THE BEST

After Four Years' Silence Jacob Lape Turns Up Charged With Bigamy.

A dispatch from Cincinnati stating that Jacob Lape, formerly a resident of McKeesport, is under arrest in that city with a charge of bigamy against him, recalls Lape's mysterious disappearance four years ago. Lape, who was a well known millworker of the Tube City, vanished suddenly, leaving a wife and three children. Mrs. Lape received a telegram Saturday from Cincinnati asking her if she was the wife of Jacob Lape, and if her husband was missing. She answered in the affirmative. Subsequently it was learned that Lape last spring married Miss Claire Morton of Newport, Ky., and that the two have been living in Cincinnati.

A brother of the Cincinnati wife was in Pittsburgh to spend the Fourth, and, it is said, learned enough to convince him that Lape had two wives. It is said that he made a quiet investigation, and that he finally confronted Lape with his evidence. Lape, it is reported, admitted that he had a wife and children in McKeesport, and he was placed under arrest.

Mrs. Lape No. 1, who lives with her three children at 2720 Fifth avenue, stated last evening that she had received no word from her husband since he disappeared four years ago. She had no intimation that he was alive until the receipt of the telegram from Cincinnati Saturday. She is about 26 years old. She has supported her children unaided for four years, and indicated that she wished nothing further to do with the husband who had left her.

LUTHERANS WILL TRY TO UNITE ON CREED

RICHMOND, IND., July 16.—Announcement was made here today that the intersynodical conference of the Lutheran church, composed of delegates from the three American synods, will meet at Ft. Wayne, August 8, to decide on a plan of union on the doctrinal matters which have hitherto divided the synods.

Doings at Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 16.—(Special.)—Two thousand people gathered in the casino hall of the Royal Palace hotel today to listen to the eulogy on the memory of John Hay delivered before the Jewish Chautauqua assembly by the Hon. Simon Wolf of Washington, leader in the country-wide movement to alleviate the condition of oppressed individuals of the Jewish race all over the world. Resolutions deploring the death of the great statesman and calling the attention of the country to his noble defense of the Jews in Russia and other countries were passed unanimously and ordered forwarded to President Roosevelt. Mr. Wolf said:

"John Hay was the ideal American. His state papers will rank with the best of the age, and his diplomacy will be used as part of the curriculum of universities. His broad catholic spirit dominated every subject he touched, and to him nationality and creed were but links in the great chain of his brotherly affection, and while worshiping as a Christian, he reverenced the Jew and bore loving tribute to the Mohammedan."

A day perfect as to temperature, with breeze-tempered sunshine, turned the entire resort out on beach and boardwalk today in a variegation of summer costume wonderful to the beholder. Mayor Stoy led the morning procession in a cream flannel suit, tan shoes and light blue tie, topped off with a straw hat banded with blue-tinted silk, setting the official seal on summer togs.

Gen. Michael R. Sheridan, brother of the famous hero of the civil war, was on parade this morning with Mrs. Sheridan, who is with him at the Marlborough. In the Pittsburgh and Western Pennsylvania contingent were Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Barnes, S. B. Barnes and F. A. Barnes, C. P. Perkins, the Erie banker, and General Superintendent E. J. Cleave of the Cresson division of the Pennsylvania railroad.

TO IMPROVE PUBLICATION OF THE CONSULAR REPORTS

Commissioner of Manufactures Will Hereafter Make Public Important Trade Information.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

WASHINGTON, July 16.—Maj. John M. Carson, commissioner of manufactures of the department of commerce and labor, has been given charge of the daily consular reports, and with the issue published tomorrow will become obvious some important changes for the better which he has introduced.

Hereafter the publication will be known as "Daily Consular and Trade Reports." An effort has been made to improve the handling of the matter and to introduce features of condensation to which this publication has been a stranger. Maj. Carson being a trained newspaper man has brought into play his practical experience. The reports hereafter will by no means be confined to the reports of consuls. Trade reports generally will be introduced, and only the very best information will appear.

When the consular reports were first established the idea was to supply information for the newspapers. They were first served, and if the reports contained anything that they wanted it was usually telegraphed. But these reports have long ago outgrown that purpose. There are now about 5,000 business men and manufacturers on the daily mailing list of the department, and Maj. Carson will hereafter cater to them in the handling of trade information.

NATION'S UNREST AND ITS REMEDY

Rev. Dr. J. Kinsey Smith Tells of Rapid Living, and the Need for a Slowing Down.

SHOULD HEED THE SPIRITUAL

"Our National Unrest and Its Remedy," was the sermon theme of the Rev. Dr. J. Kinsey Smith in the pulpit of the Shadyside Presbyterian church yesterday morning. Taking for his text Psalms cxvi:7, "Return unto thy rest, my son," he said in part:

The physicians who from time to time have pressed their fingers to the pulse of the age have declared it to be marked with the symptoms of restlessness and fatigue. One is the cause and the other the effect.

There is a hurried, hunted, worried, wearied look on the faces of the crowd. The whole body of society is agitated and discomposed. Our civilization, like some huge engine with open throttle, dashes down the track of time with terrific momentum. Everything from social and international reforms to eating dinner, is done in a hurry, and what all this hustling is about no one is able to tell.

Has not the world largely lost the secret of real pleasure in the exhausting search for even more pleasure? That portion of our population which calls itself society, and whose one end in life is to amuse and be amused, succeeds poorly in its attempt to be envied and imitated.

And what is true in business and pleasure is much the same in religion. We call our modern type of religion practical. It has become practical with a vengeance. It is religion on the run. People in the churches are possessed with the idea that religion is noise, movement, and must be made to go. It must draw crowds and pay expenses.

Shall we charge climate and physical environment with a part of this inbred fever? The swift changes of atmosphere and electrified character of our seas has much to do with this over-stimulation. We must not forget that ours is a distinctly new type of the English race. The blending of many stocks still further intensifies conditions.

Our modern life has become too miscellaneous. It is crowded with a thousand needless details. We have no time to live and are too anxious to catch up with yesterday and overtake tomorrow. Fathers and mothers have no time to get acquainted with their children. We eat in restaurants and sleep in hotels, and soon will be trying to do these things by proxy.

Inordinate desire for wealth to be gathered quickly and spent foolishly is another cause of this epidemic. The serious question in life today is who can we trust? The most solemn financial responsibilities and most sacred trusteeships are treated as avenues for private gain. The prayer which we need most today is: "From the inordinate love of money and the worship of the golden calf, good God deliver us."

Christian science has seized and is exploiting one of the greatest truths of religion when it claims that the spiritual is the essential element in man. Our disquietude, discontent, neurosis and depleted vitality are due in no small measure to the fact that we have been trying to live on a material plane. The religion of Jesus Christ as a living reality, a divine hope, a gladness and joy and stimulation—this is what is needed to keep us fresh and young, and to hold us down to the steadiness and calmness of true living.

Religion is either wings or a millstone. Either a hateful slavery or a delightful freedom. Nothing is more depressing to human nature or more damaging to character than the make-believe of a merely formal or fashionable religion. Rest in the religious life.

We are seeking our paradise here and drink out of the earthly cups the bitter wine of unbelief. It is a terrible indictment to bring against our time, but I believe it is not overdrawn when I say that we are living in the midst of a great spiritual apostacy.

EARLY EVANGELISM KIND NEEDED TODAY

Rev. Dr. John L. Hillman Cites Open Air Services Conducted by Philip as Example.

"Open Air Evangelism in the Early Church" was the subject of the sermon delivered by the Rev. Dr. John L. Hillman in the Lincoln Avenue Methodist Episcopal church yesterday evening. His text was Acts viii:35: "Then Philip opened his mouth and began at the same scripture and preached unto him Jesus." He said in part:

The scripture with which Philip began is the same that we have been studying in the Sabbath school today. In the midst of his labors in Samaria he received an appointment to go down into the desert, and it was there he found the congregation referred to in the text. Beginning with scripture, Philip preached unto them Jesus. That was an example of open air evangelism in the early church. I have thought that we might learn some valuable lessons from a study of this story of Philip preaching to the Ethiopian.

He was a layman, or at most a lay preacher. There are not enough regularly ordained preachers to do all the preaching that needs to be done, and we preachers do not want a monopoly. It is not good for the layman, the church nor the world. The times of great growth in the church have been times of lay preaching. The next thing we notice about Philip is that he preached outside of the churches. I would not have fewer churches or fewer sermons in them, but it is a mistake to do all the preaching inside the four walls of a church or any other building. If we had more preaching outside of the churches we would have more to hear the preaching inside. I do not know but that it is unfortunate that churches were ever built.

Philip was divinely directed. Blessed is the man that goes on the run when the Lord directs, and believes fully in that guidance. I know there is a great deal of fanaticism concerning the leadings of the spirit. Philip got in touch with his congregation. He could have accomplished at a distance. Distance is something else besides a matter of feet and inches. It is a matter of affection. Too much of our preaching is done at long range. We fail to get near the situation and unchurched.

Philip's congregation consisted of one. That would have discouraged most preachers. Some of the most remarkable sermons have been preached to very small congregations. Preaching that needs to be done cannot be done to men in great congregations. I fear sometimes that we are losing sight of the real purpose of our coming together. It is not that we may display our millinery, that we may have a spectable, that we may have some place to go, that we may listen to music, but that we might worship God. We talk about every thing but sacred things before the service, and resume before the strains of the doxology have died away.

Our ideas of a sermon are entirely too formal. We think it must be anywhere from a half hour to an hour and one-half in length, and have about so many sub-divisions. We need broader conceptions of sermons. Evangelism that will go farther in building up the kingdom of Christ is that which you can do as you sit with your friend on the porch, as you walk by his side on the street or along the sea shore.

OLD-TIME SERMONS COMPARED TO THE NEW

The Rev. Dr. C. F. Wishart Tells of the Discourses of Yore and of Today.

Under the subject theme, "An Old Fashioned Sermon," the Rev. Dr. C. F. Wishart gave an interesting discourse in the pulpit of the Eleventh United Presbyterian church, Allegheny, yesterday morning, citing the parallel between the old-time sermon and the modern "ten minute sermonette." He said in part:

I know the vision which most of you conjure up in your mind's eye as touching old fashioned sermons. You think of extremely doctrinal and extremely dry discourses, running all the way from fifthly to fifteenthly, like those of Dugald McTavish the Highland preacher in McClaren's Drumtochty stories, who began at 6 o'clock and preached till 9 on the "Trumpets of Salvation," and then catching his second wind—as the athletes say—proceeded to elaborate satan in all of his offices and characteristics.

Or your thought goes back to our fathers who sat without the quiver of an eye-lash while the preacher developed his "heads and particulars" to the painful extent of one hour and a half. In a word, to most of us the old fashioned sermon stands for something dry, hard, technical to a degree, and doctrinal until it fairly reeked with theological flavoring. And if the character of most modern preaching is at wide variance from this, most men are disposed to think that the former times were distinctly not better than these, and that it is well the old order changeth, yielding place to new.

The ten minute "sermonette" is of course barred out by definition. It bears about the same relation to a real sermon that a well disposed kindergarten bears to the average university. But of real sermons it is doubtless fitting that they should have less skeleton and more clothing than of yore. And it is well that they should be shorter and more limited as regards the area of discussion. In the olden day the preacher took the place of the newspaper, the magazine, and to some extent the public library. But today books and papers have become so cheap that he who runs—or rides the street car—may read. The pulpit is no longer a forum for the discussion and dissemination of general intelligence. On the contrary it is less fitted to instruct than to be instructed in most matters of technical learning and in very many matters of popular knowledge as well.

The old fashioned intellectual dictatorship of the old fashioned preacher is gone forever. "I am Sir Oracle, and when I open my mouth let no dog bark," is the expression of a spirit fatal to pulpit utterance in these days of independent thinking. And it is perhaps well that what the pulpit loses in breadth it should gain in concentration. It has one supreme message and a woe impends if so be that message is dulled or slurred or crowded out by the maxims of the worldly wise.

So I venture to allege that there are certain characteristics of old fashioned preaching, as thoroughly opposite and as thoroughly needed now as of yore. Not the length of it, nor, if you please, the technical terms in which men dissected the delicate mysteries of the spiritual life. Certainly not the harsh spirit which sometimes marred pulpit effectiveness. But what we still need is old fashioned statement of old fashioned truth—the truth of sin, of righteousness of judgment to come, the plain, direct and searching application of divine standards to human wickedness that makes the human heart to tremble; and along with this the old fashioned message of grace, the sweet evangel of peace through redeeming love, the amaranthine flower of divine pardon and saving power, which bloomed so sweetly of old, and which can even now fill these barren lives of ours with the sweetness and splendor of the "lilies at God's own gate." My old fashioned sermon deals with sin as old as the human race, pardon as old as the eternal plan of God, and a victory wrought long centuries ago, whose time-tried fruits are yours for the taking.

LAY THE CORNER STONE.

Special Services Are Held by Belmar Christian Congregation—Church to Include Flat for Pastor.

Before a large gathering of members and friends of the congregation the corner stone of the new Belmar Christian church, being erected at Race and Sterrett streets, was laid yesterday afternoon.

The principal address was delivered by the Rev. Dr. Wallace Tharp of Allegheny, while other addresses were made by the Revs. C. E. Zahniser, R. W. Wood, George W. Taft, L. N. D. Wells, S. E. Brewster, F. M. Gordon and the pastor, the Rev. E. H. Manley. Special music was a feature of the service.

The church, which it is expected to complete by fall, will be of buff brick and will cost $16,000. It is being built on a lot 75x93 feet, which was purchased for $4,950 cash. Aside from having all the department rooms of a modern church, the new building will include a six-room flat on the second floor for the minister and his family.

Congregation Celebrates Renovation of Washington Avenue M. E. Building.

After being closed for several weeks, during which time the building was repaired, renovated and reseated, the Washington Avenue Methodist Episcopal church was reopened yesterday with special services morning, afternoon and evening.

The principal address was made in the afternoon by the Rev. Dr. N. L. Brown of Leechburg, while several former pastors and a number of neighboring clergymen also spoke. The pastor, the Rev. Dr. George H. Flinn, was in charge of the services, which included special music and singing.

PREACHES ON TRIAL.

Smithfield Street German Congregation Hears the Rev. Hans Haupt.

The Rev. Hans Haupt of North Tonawanda, N. Y., preached two sermons before the congregation of the Smithfield Street German Evangelical Protestant church yesterday, on trial, being a candidate for the pulpit made vacant by the resignation of the Rev. Gustave Probst. The morning sermon was in German and the evening in English.

One more candidate, the Rev. Erich Schmidt of Belleville, Ill., is to be heard, and he will occupy the pulpit next Sunday morning and afternoon. A special meeting of the board of trustees is to be held this evening, when the pulpit vacancy and the church picnic, to be held in Aliquippa park on July 20, will be discussed.

BUSINESS ENGAGEMENT BROKEN TO SAVE A DOG

Yacht Under Hurry Orders is Stopped to Pick Up a Drowning Canine.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, July 16.—Having given orders to the captain of his private steam yacht, the Nada, to send the boat on a record breaking run that he might keep an important business engagement at the Atlantic Yacht club at Seagate, yesterday afternoon, Frederick W. Thompson, to rescue a dog swimming aimlessly and in an exhausted condition far out in Gravesend bay, had the yacht stopped, lowered a small boat and dragged the perishing animal aboard.

He lost 15 minutes and caused several financiers to growl at the delay, but Mr. Thompson said that one look from the eyes of the grateful canine waif was worth the trouble and more. Evidently having fallen or jumped overboard unnoticed from a private yacht, the thoroughbred Chesapeake bay retriever was swimming in circles, so tired that only a part of its head was above water.

"The look in the eyes of that dog was almost human," said Mr. Thompson. "I shall never forget it. Nada, for that is now her name, had evidently been in the water for hours."

Nada's future is assured. She will be the yacht's mascot.

MEN OF MILLIONS HAVE A CHAMPION

The Rev. Dr. Donehoo Takes Up Cudgel in Warm Defense of Those Whom Public Assail.

RICH MAN IS CHARITY'S FRIEND

Under the sermon theme, "Speak What Thou Knowest," the Rev. Dr. E. R. Donehoo, in the pulpit of the West End Presbyterian church yesterday morning, scored the attacks made upon John Wanamaker, Andrew Carnegie, Phillip Armour and John D. Rockefeller, following their bequests to charity. His text was: Job xxxiv:33. He said in part:

Job was charged with speaking ignorantly on matters which involved the good name of others. This propensity is common amongst men. Judgments are continually being formed of men's characters on wholly inadequate proof. One of the crying sins of our time is the disposition to impugn the motives of such as are trying to do good in the world. When persons of large means undertake to perform some religious, or charitable or philanthropic deed there are always those who stand ready to find fault with their action, and to attribute to them some unworthy motive.

Let a rich man attempt to help a worthy cause according to his ability, and you will find those who will impugn his motives, speak evil of the good that is being done, maliciously attack his past life and cruelly dissect his character. When John Wanamaker established the largest missionary Sabbath school and church in a destitute part of his city, his competitors were not slow in charging him with doing the whole thing to advertise his business, and although they stood ready to resort to the most questionable methods to advance their own interests they never attempted the building of churches and establishing of missionary enterprises to advertise their business.

When Mr. Carnegie gave large sums to endow free libraries it was charged against him that he was in the habit of reducing the wages of employes to make up these benefactions, though no workman in his employ ever fathered any such a slander. When Mr. Armour donated millions to found the great University of Chicago it was widely declared that he was an extortioner and a grinder-down of the poor. And now that Mr. Rockefeller, who is known by all his friends and neighbors to be an humble, consistent Christian, with a heart ready to respond to every worthy appeal for aid, is impelled to give $100,000 to the cause of foreign missions, a mere tithe of what he is regularly giving for religious and charitable purposes, such a howl is raised against the acceptance of the gift, and against the man who gave it, and the business enterprise with which his name is associated, and the religious body with which he is affiliated, that people who do not know any better are wondering why the man is not driven out of the country and his ill-gotten gains devoted to a wild scramble by those who are keeping up the howl against him.

Why it is that just because a man prospers on account of his clear-sightedness, the founder of a magnificent system which has not simply enriched all who are actively associated with him in its management, but at the same time cheapened oil until the poorest creature in Siam or Africa can have light in his hut at a nominal price, is to be branded as an enemy of the human race, I am unable to explain, unless it be because of the meanness which inheres in human nature, and which is always prompt to attribute evil to any and all who make a success of any calling or pursuit in this world. Paul said that charity thinketh no evil, and it is just as true now as when he gave utterance to this truth.

POPULAR SUNDAY GAZETTE ADDS TO LIST OF FRIENDS

Contains Varied and Multitudinous Class of News Which Just Tickles the Literary Fancy.

While the news features of yesterday's Gazette were of such a character as to attract all classes of readers, the feature and pictorial sections were also full of interest. There were also features in the advertising pages of rare value to buyers and sellers. The Sunday Gazette aims to get something within its columns which will hold the interest of every reader of a Sunday paper. For the women there is a department devoted especially to the weaker sex; for the children there are Buster Brown, Sammy Sneeze and the rest of those familiar figures who are prime favorites with the juvenile population; for the lovers of heavier reading there is almost everything which the heart would desire. Saturday's news was varied and voluminous. Here are some few of the interesting things that happened, and of which The Gazette told:

Russia would welcome Chinese intervention in the affairs of the peace conference. Contrary to rumor M. Witte is to head the czar's peace mission and is clothed with plenary power. The Swedish parliament discussed the national situation behind closed doors. Paul Deloured and other political exiles in seriocomic fashion spurned the pardon given them by the French government. The French submarine, Farfadet, was finally raised and towed to port, and an examination showed that the 14 men who perished used every manner of device to effect their escape. Cossacks fired upon a crowd in the streets of Lodz.

The Equitable will change its style of policies and will endeavor to popularize the non-participating form. Senator Clark of Montana underwent an operation for abscess of the brain and his condition is critical. President Roosevelt ordered a rigorous investigation into the cotton report scandal. The American beef trust is after the cattle markets of the Argentina republic. The wife of "Scotty," the Death Valley millionaire, is tired of being mobbed and wants to return home. President Roosevelt signed a proclamation providing for opening a settlement in Uintah Indian reservation, Utah. Commissioner Shonts and Engineer Stevens talked about their labors in the canal zone. A former member of the Columbus board of education was taken into custody pending an investigation of a lottery unearthed in the Ohio capital. Chairman Shonts declared there need be no fear that the canal will not be built. The Second brigade, N. G. P., opened its camp at Erie. Reports of the arrest of Republican leaders were not confirmed by members of Mayor Weaver's party.

John Lindsey McCuicheon died suddenly at his residence in Homewood avenue. District Attorney Stewart will send bills charging conspiracy to extort, against Aldermen Levy and Barton, back to the grand jury. Twelve new lawyers were admitted to practice in all of the courts. The Iron City Trust Company asked for a receiver for the J. D. Bend Company. The Republican county committee had adopted new rules. Police Capt. Frederick of the South Side was placed on the suspension list pending a hearing on serious charges. The contract for the erection of a new union station in Allegheny was awarded to an eastern firm. Mayors Hays and Wyman will spend a week fishing and talking politics. Man received a broken skull during a fight.

The New York bank statement was the strongest in many weeks, loans decreasing and cash reserve increasing. Stocks were dull but closed firm. Wheat was strengthened by Russian reports.

The Pirates were beaten in the opening game with New York by a score of 5 to 7, the Giants winning out in a ninth inning rally. Chicago again wrests the lead from Cleveland in the American league. Many fine games were played in the County league. Expert Naughton thinks Marvin Hart will have a hard time defending the title handed down to him by Jeffries. Hermis won the feature event at Brighton Beach. The Pittsburgh Collegians were beaten at Atlantic City.

Buy Copper Buy Copper

COPPER

Amalgamated Copper will sell at 130—it may reach 150. This is my prediction. Don't stick a pin here. Buy the stock, and buy it now. Don't wait for it to touch top. Buy it now.

This prediction is made after a careful investigation of the intrinsic value and the market position of the stock. Amalgamated sold at 130 in 1901. There are more reasons in 1905 than in 1901 why it should sell at that price.

The Amalgamated Copper Company is operated under Standard Oil methods and policies. Whatever may be said of the Standard Oil people, it has never been denied that this group of financiers has been successful in their undertakings. They made Standard Oil, they made St. Paul and they made many other equally good securities. They have made Amalgamated Copper. Now they are going to give it a proper market value. That value is 130, maybe 150.

Inside financial interests have been accumulating the shares since their low point in October, 1903. The bear party of Wall street and Boston have used every pressure to keep the shares down. They are now 50 points above that low record.

Thousands of dollars have been spent in a bear campaign against Amalgamated since July, 1904. Within the year the price has advanced 60 per cent and the dividend has been increased from ¼ of one to one per cent quarterly. Dividends talk.

Five years ago Amalgamated paid eight per cent. The conservative policy of reducing the dividend has placed the company in a strong position. The stock will be on a six per cent basis in a short time. Then the dividend will be increased again. If it is worth over 80 when it pays four per cent, it will be worth more than 120 on a six per cent basis.

The worth of a mining stock is judged by ore in sight. It is estimated that one-fifth of the Butte Mountain ore body has been mined. Statistics show that one-fifth was worth $700,000,000. Eighty per cent of the remainder belongs to Amalgamated. That would be worth at least $2,240,000,000, or $1,445.00 for each share of Amalgamated. Stupendous.

Amalgamated produced 240,000,000 pounds of copper last year. At double this output it would still be working in the Butte deposit 100 years from now.

One hundred mines and mining claims belong to the Amalgamated. Look at its timber and coal, its railroads and profits from by-products.

Look at Amalgamated when its output is compared with that of the world's greatest mines:

	Output in 1904.
Rio Tinto	75,000,000 lbs.
Mansfeld	50,000,000 "
Calumet & Hecla	81,000,000 "
Consol. Copper Queen	60,000,000 "
Greene Consolidated	80,000,000 "
AMALGAMATED	254,000,000 "

At the present rate of output, Amalgamated will produce 300,000,000 pounds in 1905.

The copper metal market is strong. Better than 15 cents a pound will be received for this output. At 15 cents it would be worth $45,000,000.

It would take only $9,500,000 to pay a 6 per cent dividend on Amalgamated's $155,000,000 stock. This is only 20 per cent of the gross income from copper mined. In addition there are profits from by-products, timber, coal, etc.

Glance at some of Amalgamated's subsidiary companies: Boston & Montana, Anaconda, Parrot, Butte & Boston, Colorado Mining, etc.

Amalgamated owns the Boston & Montana and the Butte & Boston, 65 per cent of Anaconda, and 77 per cent of the Parrot.

In 1904 Montana produced $4,960,000 in gold, and $12,750,000 in silver. Butte Mountain produced 85 per cent of this gold and 95 per cent of the silver.

The Butte Mountain deposit is the richest and most easily worked in the world. The deepest ore is the richest. The worth of this deposit of copper ore is almost incredible.

These are facts—not fancies.

Amalgamated is worth more money. In the eighties it is out of its class. This will be better realized soon when it sells above 100.

The tape will soon record "ACP" above par, and it will keep going until 130 is reached; possibly it will touch 158.

I will carry AMALGAMATED COPPER on a FIVE POINT MARGIN and Four Per Cent Interest.

SECURITIES WERE IRREGULAR; BONDS EVINCED STRENGTH

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, July 16.—Wall street business week was one of marked irregularity in speculative securities and of underlying strength but continued dullness in the division of bonds and investments. This was a natural reflection of the conflicting developments of the interval, failing at a time when speculative securities after an extensive rise, had resulted a price level close to the highest in their history, and when, so far as the investor is concerned, there are still some features which impel caution.

While fairly indicative of the present attitude of the public towards securities and while throwing some light on the existing technical position of the market, the action of the two great divisions, as set forth above, was without any great importance as an index of the future. In fact, irregularity in speculative quarters, indicating a division of opinion or a conflict of interests and hesitation in the investment field, as illustrated by the failure of the reinvestment demand to materialize forcefully since the turn of the half year, serves rather to cloud than to clarify the outlook.

No one will deny that speculative sentiment, as it is observed in Wall street, has undergone a change for the better, dating from the time the ownership of the Equitable Life Assurance society was transferred from one individual to another, and the active manipulation of the market was taken in hand. Yet it seems quite apparent the optimism has been largely confined to Wall street, or rather that the outward and visible signs of the improved sentiment have not resulted in attracting a speculative following to the security market in inducing the personal investor to make extensive purchases.

The stock market has been notoriously professional, so much so in fact that brokerage houses have again been forced in explaining the seeming anomaly of an active and advancing market coincident with the deserted appearance of their offices. They do so on the score than the "public" now is something different than the "public" of a few years ago, holding that a number of large operators—all professional speculators, by the way—make up in the volume of their transactions for the aggregate of many small dealers in the past.

That prices should be irregularly changed or even react with a spirit of speculative optimism afloat is not wholly a contradictory situation. Unquestionably as prices do advance, whether as a result of professional manipulation or as a result of indiscriminate buying, the temptation upon the part of actual holders of securities to sell and take profits increases. Shrewd and far-sighted men familiar with every phase of the Wall street game are fully alive to the fact that no matter how favorable are fundamental conditions, prices never go entirely out of sight. Like trees in their growth, the upward tendency always stops somewhere this side of heaven.

As with the investors so with the speculators of the first class. Their well-known axiom is "sell on good news," it was wholly in accordance with tradition then that such favorable features as an excellent government crop report on wheat and corn, the highly successful flotation of the Japanese loan and the increase in the dividend rate on Baltimore & Ohio common stock should have been followed by realizing sales.

The news developments of the week in Wall street were certainly favorable to the constructive side of the market. Whether the irregular course of speculative prices, the reactionary tendency which developed to a pronounced degree in some quarters, and the dullness that settled upon the market toward the close, indicates the prevailing range of stocks has already discounted a great deal of the good news, remains to be seen. There are certainly some things that go to show, entirely independent of price movement, that some of the favorable underlying situation has been discounted. For instance, for a long interval after the prices touched their low point in May came a series of disturbing developments, which had no adverse effect, except to induce extreme dullness. Then came the recovery, slowly at first and then more rapidly as the trading element gained in confidence and the manipulation work developed force.

No one with any knowledge of the true factors which make for prosperity, will gainsay that the promises of the future, resting upon the outcome of the harvests, is bright indeed. Whether there were leaks in the cotton or wheat reports or not, and whether there was a "doctoring" of statistics to influence speculative markets, makes no difference on actual conditions. The government figures, to be sure, lose considerable of their value as a basis of comparison, and cast doubt upon many deductions based upon statistics. There are, however, enough sources of independent information with which, taken with government figures, to fairly well approximate results. At this time, then, it is known that an abundant winter wheat harvest is assured, that a bounteous spring wheat, and nearly a record-breaking corn harvest is promised. This, with the prospect of a fair cotton crop and a large supply of last year's cotton carried over, which will find a market at fair prices, gives assurance of continuous blessings to the whole country.

To be sure, neither cotton, spring wheat nor corn is out of danger at this time, and in the ordinary course of events some deterioration may be expected in one or the other of these crops, but it is pleasant to consider that at this time unless some unforeseen calamity should develop, the material wealth of the country will be greatly enhanced by the products of the soil. It should be, however, entirely unnecessary to call attention to the fact that not all of the harvest yield is actual money or actual profit to the farmer, no more than the total output of a mill or the merchandise turnover of the merchant represents cash in hand or profit to him. There can be a misuse of figures and statistics, as well as a proper usage of them.

It is only the ignorant who are deceived by the stock market calculations, which takes the estimated yield of cotton, corn, wheat and all the minor crops (outputs which are mere estimates), then multiplies each by an arbitrary figure (not realized), and then figures out a total, some two or three times greater than the circulating medium of the world, all of which it is insinuated will find its way into speculative Wall street.

It is well to recollect that many factors enter into the determination of prices. They are not gauged alone by the amount of mineral or agricultural wealth drawn from the earth, and even with the bright harvest prospects it is possible that from being speculative maneuverings they may at times be carried above their fair valuation. In the present instance the future of the money market is not free from some disturbing possibilities, and speculative security prices themselves rule at a high level. The harvest prospects, if they are realized in full, will sustain business and may increase its activity, entailing a more liberal use of funds by merchants and manufacturers. With loans throughout the country already expanded, the natural workings of a demand for funds by the merchant and the manufacturer to whom they belong would be to harden rates in the financial centers. Thus, even with good crop prospects, security prices might be forced to yield by advancing money rates, which would necessitate liquidation.

REVIEW OF THE WEEK IN THE LOCAL MARKETS

Flour and Sugar Both Break to Lower Figures—All Other Lines Firm.

The week just ended was a remarkably good one in volume of trade. There was no dull day in the six and several of them almost attained the dignity of record-breakers. The month of June proved the best for all lines in the local markets of any month for a year, but the month of July promises to far surpass it.

The only two lines which are at all slow are sugar and flour. Sugar broke another 10 points Friday and flour followed Saturday. Both had been weak the entire six days. The uncertainty of conditions in both these markets has made buyers wary. In both lines they are waiting for a more stable market before purchasing in quantities. Sugar is now lower than it has been for over a year, but dealers believe the bottom has not been reached. Business at the mills is dull and no improvement is looked for until the wheat market has found its bottom.

Green goods were in great demand all week and prices were stable. There was but little shifting and what was about averaged up, a few lines advancing and others going down. Dealers along the street report it one of the best weeks for the past two years. Outside buyers were plentiful and heavy shipments were made all week to outlying towns in the Pittsburgh district.

HAY AND GRAIN.

Receipts.

Receipts yesterday were: Pennsylvania lines, 12 cars oats, 4 cars hay, 1 car corn, 1 car straw, 2 cars feed. Baltimore & Ohio, 1 car corn, 2 cars oats, 2 cars hay. Lake Erie, none.

Receipts were light all week and the market denoted great strength. Prices were generally advanced, but no change is looked for now in prices so long as receipts continue so light, although the grain market has been breaking some in the west. The market is not apt to react here for some days at least.

REPORTS FROM RUSSIA STRENGTHEN WHEAT

Sentiment in Pit Inclines to Bullishness Throughout the Session—Corn is Up.

[By Associated Press to The Gazette.]

CHICAGO, July 15.—Reports of damage to Russian crops had a strengthening influence on the wheat market here today. At the close the September option was up 1½@1¾c. Corn shows a gain of ¾c. Oats are practically unchanged. Provisions are 5 to 10c higher.

Sentiment in the wheat pit throughout the greater part of the session inclined to bullishness, although no decided strength was manifested. At the opening September was up ¼@⅜c to ¾@⅞c, at 84¼@84⅝c. From the start shorts were moderate buyers, and while commission houses sold, offerings were not of large volume. One cause for the improved demand was a London prediction of shortage in the Russian crop of wheat as a result of industrial and political disorders. Later in the day this London report was practically contradicted by semi-official advices from Russia.

A factor that inspired some buying was wet weather in the Canadian northwest. Weather in the United States, however, was extremely favorable for the new crop and tended to hold buyers in check. Decrease in shipments from Austria formed a bullish influence, exports for the week being only 176,000 bushels, against 440,000 bushels the week preceding, and 272,000 bushels the corresponding week a year ago.

The movement from the winter wheat section of the United States today continued on an extreme, liberal scale, causing further declines in the price of cash wheat at all grain centers. The September option here was confined within a 1-cent range, the low point, touched shortly after the opening, being at 83¼c, while the highest point was 84⅝c. The market closed firm, with September at 84¼@84⅝c. Primary receipts were 621,000 bushels, compared with 578,000 bushels a year ago. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 72,000 bushels. Minneapolis, Duluth and Chicago reported receipts of 176 cars, against 189 cars last week and 222 cars a year ago.

In corn, prospects for higher receipts started active buying by shorts and prevailing in an active market. Firmer cables and improved demand for cash corn helped to stimulate buying. The market was supported by prominent bulls, and closed strong. September opened ¼ to ⅜c higher, at 39½ to 39⅝c, sold up to 39¾@39⅞c, and closed at 39¾c. Local receipts were 238 cars, with 74 of contract grade.

Trading in the oats pit was extremely light. Strength of wheat held prices for oats comparatively steady. September corn opened unchanged to ⅛c higher, at 29½ to 29⅝c, sold off to 29¼@29⅜c, and closed at the lowest point. Local receipts were 125 cars.

Provisions were firm because of 5c advance in the price of live hogs. Several leading packers were credited with fair purchases of ribs. At the close September pork was up 10c, at $12.35. Lard was up 5@7½c, at $7.12½@7.27½. Ribs were 10c, at $7.37½.

Estimated receipts for Monday—Wheat, 21 cars; corn, 220 cars; oats, 170 cars; hogs, 25,000 head.

OPTIMISM PERVADES THE LONDON MARKET

Among Causes Are M. Witte's Appointment and Crop Reports from United States.

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]
(Copyright, 1905, by New York Herald Co.)

LONDON, July 16.—During the week the cheerfulness which was apparent at the close of business seven days ago has strengthened to something like optimism. Three principal causes stand out among the multitude that are assigned—the absence of serious difficulties at the settlement, the cheapness of money and, what is particularly commented on here, the appointment of M. Witte as Russian representative at the peace conference. Among other reasons may be mentioned the excellent crop reports from the United States, the brighter prospects for trade in this country and the excellent earnings of foreign railways.

In the money market the chief feature of interest has been the issue of the new Japanese loan, which is said to have been oversubscribed 13 or 14 times, so that the applicants can hardly be allotted more than 6 or 7 per cent of their subscriptions. This will result next week in the displacement of funds, owing to the return of their money to the unsuccessful applicants.

The fact is commented on generally that money is again accumulating in London. The ease in that market in the last few days has created a better demand for high class investment securities in which the ordinary stocks of British railways have participated. Gilt-edged securities have advanced under the lead of consols. Colonials are in some cases better, but Indian stocks are rather weak.

Foreign securities are higher as a result, the only prominent exception being Russian, though some recovery has taken place on the belief that if the war comes to an end the internal condition of the country will improve. There has been more talk about Russian borrowing and the French banks will at least have to find the money to pay the coupons, but the Economist thinks no large loan is conceivable until the terms of peace have been arranged.

For the first time in what seems a long period there is something cheerful to say about the home railway market, pessimism giving way at last, while some investment business has been attracted by comparatively low prices. Southeastern and Chatham have been prominent among the more speculative issues on the reports that Dover will be used by the Cunard company for its great ships now building for the American trade.

Interest in the American railways is still at a low ebb over here, and the dealing in those stocks in America is believed to be largely professional.

Summarizing the views of the financial papers, it is regarded here as unlikely that money will be as plentiful this autumn in New York as it was last year, and apparently higher rates will be offered in order to secure great imports of the gold from Europe which will be necessary for moving the crops. However, with the prospect that money in Europe will be plentiful and that the gold arrivals from South Africa, Australia and elsewhere will be very large, and that a considerable amount of gold may be released by the Bank of Russia, there should be no difficulty in getting as much as is wanted.

The Statist believes that with the prospect of good crops in the coming year, with a probable increase in the gross earnings and a possible increase in the net profits, there is nothing to deter European investors from purchasing American bonds and those American railway shares which still look attractive.

The British consular reports recently made are of interest in America, one of them especially, in view of the great interest just now in all matters pertaining to insurance. According to Mr. Bennett, consul general of San Francisco, American offices are ousting British offices in that city. He considers one of the principal reasons for this is that a British office can take no important step without referring to the head office in London, valuable time being thus lost. In life insurance the more active and possibly daring tactics of the American offices have the consul general states, driven the old British offices from the field.

From Mexico Mr. Jerome, the consul general, warns British investors against fraudulent American companies selling rubber stock. These, he says, are trying to operate in London after being foiled in their own country. A somewhat similar warning comes from the consul general at San Francisco against the purchase of California mining and oil shares. Investors, however, have bought so many "gold bricks" imported from America that just now they seem to have a suspicion of anything new that comes from the United States.

FIRM TONE MARKS THE CLOSE OF PARIS BOURSE

[Special Cable to The Gazette.]
(Copyright, 1905, by New York Herald Co.)

PARIS, July 16.—The bourse closed on Thursday, under a generally firm impression, caused by the conclusion of the Franco-German understanding. No salient feature marked any of the week's four sessions.

Kaffir shares, which recently suffered a sensible continuous decline, have now become firmer, owing to large purchases. It is estimated 1,000,000 shares have been sold since the middle of May on the Paris bourse, but the higher prices quoted last week indicate that Transvaal shares are destined speedily to become a good market.

Foreign bonds are all well held. Argentines advancing somewhat. The approach of the holidays caused inactivity during the week.

VICTIMS OF THE FOURTH.

Negro Dies of Lockjaw, and an Austrian of Blood Poisoning at Harrisburg as Result of Injuries.

HARRISBURG, July 16.—Henry Payne, a colored boy, died last night from a powder wound received on the night of the 3d of July. Lockjaw set in, but did not develop until Friday, and it was then too late to save him.

Vido Parlovia, an Austrian, died in Steelton last night of blood poisoning, caused by a revolver wound on the Fourth of July, when he was firing a salute. These are the first two cases here of the aftermath of the Fourth.

Two Killed in Collision.

ROANOKE, Va., July 16.—Two men were killed and four more injured in a head-on collision between two freight trains today, one mile north of Midvale, Va., on the Shenandoah division of the Norfolk & Western railway. The dead are E. S. Hite of Vesuvius, Va., a brakeman, and John Dent of Roanoke, fireman.

ROAD'S SUBWAY PLANS ARE SENT

Pennsylvania Ready to Eliminate Grades in Cincinnati—Bale Leaves B., R. & P.

ELLSWORTH'S COMING IS SURE

Detail plans and specifications of the subway system to be constructed by the Pennsylvania lines west in Cincinnati to eliminate grade crossings have just been completed by W. C. Cushing, chief engineer maintenance of way of the southwest system of the lines west. Mr. Cushing forwarded the plans to Hugh Conway, superintendent of the department of track eliminations and subways, of Cincinnati, on Saturday. The plans are for what is known as the first section, extending about seven-tenths of a mile from Niagara street to Brooklyn street, and crossing the lines of four streets. Along with the plans the Pennsylvania lines engineering department desires to know how soon the property needed to proceed with the work will be condemned by the city.

The plans for eliminating grade crossings in Cincinnati follow out the progressive Pennsylvania system's policy for doing away with dangerous and costly crossings in the larger cities. At the same time the Pennsylvania is endeavoring, wherever possible, to do away with grade crossings of country roads. Bids were closed last week by Robert Trimble, chief engineer maintenance of way of the northwest system, for the construction of the new line through Cleveland to eliminate grade crossings there, some by overhead and others by undergrade crossings of the streets. The contracts for this work will probably be announced today.

There is no other railroad system in the country that has been or is now doing so much work along this line as the Pennsylvania system on the lines east and west of this city. The untold value and betterment of the new elevated line through Allegheny is well known to all who have seen it. The continuation of eliminating the street crossings through Lower Allegheny is proceeding rapidly by digging a canal a half mile long and placing the tracks in this. The work in Chicago is well along, although much construction remains to be done there. Grade elimination is also being pushed at other cities on the lines west, and eventually the lines will probably have no grade crossing in any city of consequence.

On the lines east the work has gone ahead with vigor, especially on the New Jersey lines, where elevated roadway has been constructed through several towns. Latrobe has had an elevated roadway for over a year and the people are well satisfied. Negotiations are now on between the Wilkinsburg council and the engineering department of the Pittsburgh division for doing away with the principal crossings in that borough, while it is expected that Braddock will be the next place to ask for the improvement.

Ellsworth Appointment Definite.

O. M. Ellsworth is coming to Pittsburgh as commercial agent of the Rock Island and Frisco systems to succeed the late D. M. Maloney in the freight business of the two companies. In The Gazette yesterday it was said that the understanding was that Mr. Ellsworth was to come, although definite information was wanting. It was learned yesterday definitely that the change will be made. Mr. Ellsworth is succeeded at Cincinnati by C. C. Spaulding, who has been traveling freight agent for the two systems there since the consolidation on January 1, 1904. Prior to that time he had been general agent of the Frisco there. His title will be commercial agent, and he will have charge of the freight business. No announcement has been made or word received in Pittsburgh of the appointment of a district passenger agent here or of a successor to George D. Totten as traveling passenger agent.

T. W. Bale Leaves B., R. & P.

T. W. Bale, who was appointed division freight agent of the Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburgh railway at Buffalo less than a month ago, has resigned to accept an executive position with the Keystone Warehouse company. The position will give him virtual charge of the company's management of storage and warehouse interests at Buffalo. No successor has been named for the division freight agency. Mr. Bale's appointment to the position was announced in The Gazette a couple of weeks ago. He succeeded Dennis Lundergan, who retired from the active position on account of ill health. Prior to his appointment Mr. Bale had been acting division freight agent. He has the reputation of being one of the best-posted traffic men in the country on tariffs.

No Change in Auditing Department.

It was learned yesterday from an official source that there is to be no change in the auditing departments of the New York Central lines. It was reported that there was to be a complete reorganization of the auditing department, and that all of the auditors of the lines comprising the system would be placed in charge of the accounting of their respective roads, but under a new title, and that there would be but one auditor, located at New York. Such a change would have affected the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie. An official of the latter road said that there has been no intimation of such a change, and that the new uniform system of accounting adopted last year by all of the roads of the system has been found highly efficient and satisfactory in every way.

New Type of Gondola Car.

The Pressed Steel Car Company is building at its Pittsburgh works 500 drop-bottom gondola cars for the Norfolk & Western railroad. The car is of a new design, specifications for which were worked out and a sample car built by the Norfolk & Western at its main offices and shops at Roanoke. The car has a steel underframe made of rolled sections and the sides are of wood. The total weight of the car is 38,000 pounds, which is much lighter than the cars in general railroad use. The cars used on the Norfolk & Western have steel truss upper frames to assist in carrying the load. In the new type the entire load will rest on the underframe. The sample car, with a load of 171,000 pounds of coal, had the center sills deflected only .75 of an inch at the center, and the side sills only .61 of an inch at the center. The new cars are designed for carrying 50 tons.

Summer Tour by Sea Attracts Many.

Robert Hunter, commercial agent of the Merchants and Miners Transportation Company in this district, reports that there is a good inquiry for passage upon the steamers that will be run by the line for a summer tour by sea along the Atlantic coast, leaving Baltimore Wednesday, July 26. The tour will include almost all of the famous resorts, among these being Old Point Comfort, Providence, Narragansett Pier, Newport, Boston and Ocean View. The trip will occupy almost two weeks, and at the low rates offered for all expenses of the trip, it is certain that the tour will be well patronized.

Weight of Pennsylvania Special.

The Pennsylvania special train, exclusive of the big engines which draw it, weighs 447,000 pounds, or 223½ tons. According to the official weight the composition of the train weight by cars is: Composite baggage and smoker, 110,000 pounds; dining car, 122,000 pounds; drawing room sleeping car, 120,000 pounds; compartment sleeping and observation car, 115,000 pounds.

Railroad Notes.

Hugh B. Ely, who has charge of all insurance matters of the Pennsylvania railroad, is convalescing from a severe illness.

J. C. Rosser, Bar Four agent at Sidney, O., has been elected auditor of Shelby county.

Traffic managers of a number of the Pittsburgh industrial companies will attend the meeting of the western classification committee at Cheboygan, Mich., this month.

The Erie railroad has purchased a 25-acre farm just west of Marion, O., where an immense transfer freight warehouse will be built.

The Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway has a force of 100 men at work replacing facing-point switches with the trailing-point type.

A conference will be held between trunk line and western officials at Buffalo tomorrow to endeavor to settle the sugar rate war.

It is reported that a truce has been declared in the passenger rate war between Chicago-New York lines. The impression is that the presidents of the roads have taken up the matter and may settle it soon.

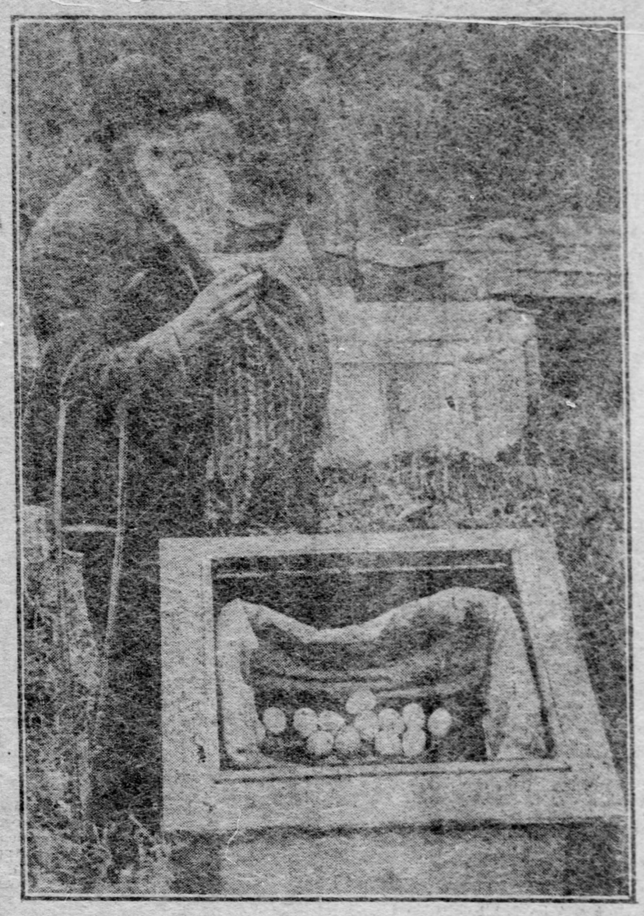
W. E. Hazelwood has been appointed traveling passenger agent of the Norfolk & Western at Cincinnati.

Dr. G. A. Goodrich, official oculist of the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern railway, at the suggestion of enginemen, is making trips over sections of the road in engines to observe the colors of block signals, etc.

The Detroit, Toledo & Ironton and Ann Arbor railroads have been consolidated and will be operated under one management.

The New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad has adopted the Brown method of discipline. This method is used by the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie.

BEE HIVE A SUCCESSFUL INCUBATOR



ASHTABULA, O., July 16.—(Special)—A most remarkable discovery made by an aged farmer of Ashtabula county has been attracting a great deal of attention of late in this section and is of particular interest during the poultry raising season of the year. Henry Decker of Rome township has proven that the heat generated in a hive of bees can be depended on without fail as a substitute for setting hens or incubators in the hatching of chickens. Not only this, but he has demonstrated repeatedly that instead of the 21 days required by a hen in hatching eggs, but 19 days are necessary under the new regime—a saving of two days.

Mr. Decker, who is 70 years old, has long raised both poultry and bees. Previous to his discovery he used an incubator. One day while handling a swarm of bees, he recognized that the temperature of the bee hive was similar to that which he maintained within the incubator. Subsequently a thermometer proved this supposition to be correct. The idea of making his bee hives do double service then dawned upon him. Accordingly 20 eggs were placed within the hive as an experiment. Opening the top of the hive the eggs were placed on a cotton cloth, thus separating them from the bees. Around the sides a cushion made from a quilt was placed, and over the eggs another cushion was put in before the cover of the hive was returned to its position. Out of the first 20 eggs 18 chickens were hatched. The proportion in many subsequent experiments has been similar. The claim is made that one hive in this manner may be made to do the work of eight setting hens and at the same time yield 100 pounds of honey in one season. Since Mr. Decker's experiment has become known, he has been flooded with inquiries from farmers and bee-keepers.

Under the new plan the number of eggs placed in a hive is not restricted as in the case of the hen. Although but one dozen eggs are shown in the photograph there is no reason why several dozen could not be hatched at the same time. As far as is known here no one has ever tried this plan of hatching chickens except Mr. Decker.

PRISONER WILLING TO OPEN GRAVES OF HIS TWO WIVES

Frederick E. Carlton Denies That He Caused the Death of the Women, and Explains Their Demise.

[By Private Wire to The Gazette.]

NEW YORK, July 16.—Frederick E. Carlton, in Raymond street jail, Brooklyn, on a charge of grand larceny, but acknowledging frankly that he knows that charge is overshadowed by the endeavor to show that he made way with two wives by tetanus poisoning, uttered the following to a reporter this afternoon:

"No move the authorities might make could have pleased me better than this decision to exhume the bodies of my two wives. A thorough examination by chemical analysis or otherwise will settle the vague, malicious rumors, because of which I have been accused by three persons, at different times, of murder. I am content to remain in prison until it is all over, absolutely certain that I will be cleared of every charge of every kind.

"I have spent the last 17 years in New York city and vicinity and if necessary I can retrace every step I have made. I do not do so now because that would only bring in the names of many persons whom I do not care to have persecuted.

"I have been married only twice, and the statement ascribed to Schaub and Mrs. Schultz that I have said I had been married five or six times is untrue. As to the death, or supposed death, of Albert McLaughlin—McLaughlin deserted from the navy in July or August, 1902. I was then chief commissary stewart on the U. S. S. Buffalo, which left New York for Manila in June, 1902, returning about October 15. At the time of his desertion the ship was in the neighborhood of the Red sea or Indian ocean.

"I first met Jennie N. Smith on Friday, May 9, 1902, after a correspondence of about five months, through a letter of introduction from McLaughlin. We were married secretly the next month.

"In May Mrs. Carlton, in putting on a felt slipper with a rubber sole, stamped on the floor, and a needle sticking in the matting ran through the sole into her foot and broke off. It was extracted. Two days later she went with me to the zoological gardens. Her foot paining her, she removed her shoe and stocking and walked barefooted for two hours. Returning home the foot began to swell. Next Monday she told me in a laughing mood: 'Fred, the funniest thing happened this morning. When I went to breakfast I could not get my mouth open to eat.' Dr. Hodges of Second street and Pennsylvania avenue was at the house inside of 15 minutes after this remark. He pronounced the case tetanus.

"Several letters were written to Mr. and Mrs. Smythe by me stating the facts in the case. I telegraphed on Sunday and the brother and mother came on Tuesday afternoon. They found Mrs. Carlton perfectly rational, she talking to them about half an hour. Mrs. Carlton died at 9:15 o'clock that night.

"I met Miss Mary T. Gorman about July 2, 1904, and we were married on August 28. Mrs. Carlton went to Dr. Salmon with a sore on her arm, which appeared after she had tried to clean a wound over the eye of a pet cat. This wound was described as a pustule. He prescribed a tonic and peroxide of hydrogen as a wash, with a wet dressing of carbolic acid in five per cent solution. This peroxide when applied to a sore containing pus causes it to boil and it is that to which several persons evidently refer. Two days before her death Dr. De Lorme, who was also called in, pronounced the case septicemia, with possible pyemia and tetanus, and advised her transfer to the hospital. This was done and there she was seen by Drs. Delatour, Campbell and Rushmore, the consulting surgeons.

"On the night preceding her death her brother and myself called on Dr. De Lorme, asking him to telephone and find out what the consulting physicians' diagnosis was. Their reply was, tetanus. Mrs. Carlton died at 6 o'clock in the evening.

"Two weeks after Mamie's death her aunt and mother came to my rooms and, after accusing me of being out with another young woman, charged me openly with killing my wife. The first charge was denied and my answer to the second was, 'I am willing to pay the expense of opening the grave and having an autopsy performed to settle this matter.' They refused to allow this.

"Since 1901 I have held a membership in two matrimonial agencies. But as I remember, I have never written a letter to any address furnished. I have received about six letters.

"When I submitted the proofs of the death of Mrs. Mary Carlton to the insurance company I added a full statement of all the facts in Mrs. Jennie Carlton's death, including newspaper accounts of the last death. These proofs were considered thoroughly and the claims paid. I hold $3,000 in three policies of the New York Life Insurance company, payable to Mrs. Mary Carlton or her estate. The beneficiary in these policies has never been changed. As it stands now it would go to her mother. I have also $2,000 in the Royal Arcanum."
